May Change Nationalist Regime To End Chinese War

PRESENT HEAD AT NANKING IS TOLD TO QUIT

Foes Drop Insistence of Forming Separate Government at Peiping

Shanghai — (AP) — China's ever-changing political horizon today gave indication of pending internal changes which if carried through may involve cessation of the present civil war and selection of new officials for the Nationalist government.

Divergent viewpoints on the situation were displayed by civil and military groups in Nanking.

Apparently authentic advices from the capital stated that high Nationalist civil officials were discussing the possibilities of a peaceful settlement.

The Nationalist military, through the government's Kuomintang news agency, countered immediately with a vigorous denial of all armistice reports and announced that on the contrary the Nationalist government was preparing for a powerful military campaign against its foes.

The reports from the civil group said that Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, and Li Chi-Sen, former governor of Canton, were being urged to undertake mediation in the present conflict.

These advices stated that Yen Shi-Shan, governor of Shansi, and Feng Yu-Hsiang, prominent militarist associated with Yen in the present Northern rebellion, are demanding the resignation of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek as head of the Nationalist government as a primary prerequisite to the armistice.

It was added that Governor Yen and General Feng had dropped their insistence upon establishment of a separate government at Peiping, the former capital.

The advices further stated that Wan Ching-Wei, the radical leader of the Kuomintang (Nationalist) party who has been a political refugee for the past two years, may be asked to form a new government, in which case the removal of many of the present Nationalist officials might be expected.

ARRESTS MAY SOLVE NEGRO MYSTERY CASE

Negro Gunman Confesses He Killed Auditor for Price of $3,000

Indianapolis — (AP) — The slaying two months ago of E. D. Pierson, 54, Negro, Chicago, auditor of the National Baptist convention, killed, police said, because he "knew too much" about the juggling of a $62,000 fund in the Nashville, Tenn., office of the Negro organization, was believed solved today.

Under arrest here were the Rev. B. J. F. Westbrook, pastor of the largest Negro church in Indianapolis and George Washington, 41, described by police as a hired Negro gunman.

At Nashville, police arrested A. M. Townsend, reputedly one of the wealthiest Negroes in the country, secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Publishing board and auditor of a Negro bank in Nashville. He was released on $10,000 bond.

The arrests, detectives believed, complete the investigation into the slaying of Pierson, who was found, riddled with bullets, where he had been tossed into the Muscatatuck river near Scottsburg, Ind., April 16.

Pierson was slain as he was returning to Chicago from Nashville, where he had uncovered the discrepancy in the Negro Baptist convention loan fund. Townsend would have been "ruined" by the exposure, detectives said and plotted the killing to cover it up.

Police said that Washington, who was arrested here Wednesday, had confessed to the slaying and said he received $3,000 for it. He was held strictly incommunicado at city prison under $10,000 bond on a vagrancy charge until the arrest early today of Westbrook.

AWARD TO NURSE MADE POSTHUMOUSLY

Saunders Medal for Distinguished Nursing Goes to Lillian Clayton, Now Dead

Milwaukee — (AP) — The Walter Burns Saunders medal for distinguished service in nursing was awarded posthumously tonight to S. Lillian Clayton who was president of the American Nurses' association at the time of her death May 2, 1930.

The award of the medal was made at a joint session of the three national nursing organizations, holding their biennial convention this week in Milwaukee. Dr. Joseph C. Doane, Philadelphia, a long-time friend of Miss Clayton, made the presentation, the medal being received by Constance White, president of the student council of the school of nursing at Philadelphia General Hospital, of which Miss Clayton had been superintendent.

In nursing education, in defining ethical standards, in all phases of professional progress, Miss Clayton, the committee on award felt, had made a conspicuous contribution.

Under her leadership as president, the American Nurses' association grew steadily until it now numbers a membership of 33,148 graduate nurses. The nurses were unanimous in giving this first Saunders medal to their former president.

The Saunders medal, offered by W. L. Saunders II of Philadelphia is to be awarded annually to that nurse who has made to the profession or to the public some outstanding contribution either in personal service or in the discovery of some nursing technique that may be of advantage to the patient and to the profession.

On the face of the medal is engraved the head of Florence Nightingale, called the founder of modern nursing, and on the reverse is the lamp, symbolic of nursing, and the words, "Awarded to S. Lillian Clayton, Distinguished for Service in the Cause of Nursing."

High Cliff Park Holds Formal Opening Sunday

The New Holstein juvenile band of 30 pieces will play at the formal opening of High Cliff park Sunday, according to M. H. Niesen, Kaukauna, proprietor.

Extensive renovations and additions to the property and equipment of the lake shore beauty spot have been under way for some time in preparation of the opening event. A high steel fence now surrounds the park proper, where the main building, dance pavilion, band stands, swings and merry-go-rounds are located. The buildings have been repaired, the grounds have been thoroughly cleaned and leveled, and closely trimmed grass stretches away from the main buildings.

Five new swings, which Niesen has specially designed, have been installed, in addition to a large caterpillar safety swing which accommodates two passengers. A new two-story cement block building has been erected to house the refreshment parlor and provides living quarters on the second floor. A fine hardwood floor is rapidly being laid in the pavilion where the dances will be held this summer.

New benches have been set at the edge of the cliff, from which one can see for miles up and down the intended shores of Lake Winnebago. The trip from the main cliff to the over-hanging ledge has been expedited by a rebuilt iron bridge which spans the gap. The baseball diamond has been leveled and newly planted ash and elm trees provide a most delightful place for the many groups that will picnic and gather there this summer, according to the manager.

New Head Of Prohibition Yet In Doubt

Washington — (AP) — The man who is going to have charge of prohibition under the justice department is due to be selected so soon that speculation as to his identity intensifies.

Transfer of responsibility from the treasury department takes effect July first. Attorney General Mitchell and his aides have been discharging who was being considered as enforcement director; but those mentioned prominently include Robert L. Watts, assistant district attorney in New York; Howard Jones, an assistant to G. A. Youngquist, assistant attorney general; Samuel O. Wynn, prohibition administrator at Philadelphia; and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the justice department.

Watts has handled the prosecution of prohibition cases in New York city. He is regarded in enforcement circles as informed and able.

Jones served as assistant to Mabel Walker Willebrandt, while she was assistant attorney general in charge of Volstead prosecutions.

Even if another were selected as director, the consensus is that Jones would be appointed assistant.

MAY WANT NEW REGIME

Wynn is connected with prohibition enforcement under the treasury. It has been said Mr. Mitchell will want to start with executives who have not been associated with the treasury's regime, however, and some friends of Wynn believe this objection may work to his disadvantage.

The same silence that has shrouded selection of a director has covered plans of reorganization. It is generally accepted, however, that Mitchell will reorganize the bureau to comprise ten or eleven administrative districts instead of 27 as at present.

Probably as many as fifty or sixty enforcement districts, double the present number will be formed.

The treasury, which will continue to handle industrial alcohol and medicinal liquor is planning to reduce its administrative districts to the number of judicial circuits to conform to the justice department's prohibition administrative districts.

Dr. James M. Doran, present commissioner of prohibition, will remain at the treasury at least for a while, as director of industrial alcohol.

LETTER INCREASES ALABAMA MYSTERY

Sister of Missing Man Denies She Sent Note to His Wife

Indianapolis — (AP) — Denial by Mrs. Lynn L. Sams of Elkhart, Ind., that she had written a letter to Mrs. Harold H. Schroeder of Mobile, Ala., wife of the man whose automobile, with a body in it, was found burning near here May 31, today focused attention of investigators on the Mobile woman.

Schroeder has not returned to his home since the fire and evidence uncovered by police has led them to believe the body found in his automobile was that of some other person.

Mrs. Schroeder has admitted receiving a special delivery letter from Indianapolis May 31, and two letters from Nashville, Tenn., since then. She explained the Indianapolis letter was from Mrs. Sams, sister of Schroeder.

Sheriff George L. Winkler of Marion county revealed last night that Mrs. Sams told him over the telephone that she "did not send Mrs. Schroeder a letter of any kind." She said Mrs. Schroeder had refused to telegraph to give information requested by Mr. Sams.

Chief of Police Warren Burch of Mobile, was quoted as saying that Mrs. Schroeder refused to talk to him when he went to her home with a telegram containing Mrs. Sams' denial that she had written the letter.

PRICE INCREASE AIDS WOOL COOPERATIVE

Madison — (AP) — Members of the Wisconsin wool cooperative marketing association are benefited by the increase in wool prices during the week in the opinion of William F. Renk, commissioner of agriculture and markets.

Wisconsin farmers shipping their wool through the association to Boston are receiving an advance of 20 cents per pound, Renk said. The advance is approximately 80 per cent of the selling price of the wool in agreement with contracts made between farmers and the association.

By yesterday, about 4,800 fleeces had been loaded this week. Full carloads went from Lancaster, Edgemoor and Dodgeville. By shipping through the association farmers are saving five and one half cents a pound on the handling charge of their wool, according to commissioner Renk.

Madison — (AP) — Cattle will continue to cause discomfiture to motorists on Wisconsin highways; the attorney general says its legal.

DEATHS PART IN PLOT

Westbrook, who was acquainted with Pierson but denied implication in his death, was alleged by detectives to have written a letter introducing Washington to the Chicago man. At Pierson's Chicago home, Washington presented himself to Edward D. Pierson, Jr., the auditor's son, who is known as a singer. Information supplied by the son, detectives said, led to solution of the slaying.

Young Pierson told the detectives Washington represented himself as a former owner of a chain of Negro drug stores, saying he wanted the auditor to work out a system of bookkeeping for him. Washington then is believed by police to have met Pierson at Louisville, Ky., and driven north towards Indianapolis with him. Near Scottsburg, police believe Pierson was fatally shot and tossed into the river. He was still alive when found the next day, but died before he could be pulled from the water.

Washington, detectives declared, is a gunman of wide reputation and is said to be wanted at Port Wayne, Ind., for "shooting up" a crowded court room and escaping.

SEE ENFORCEMENT OF LAKE FISHING LAWS

Madison — (AP) — The supreme court's action in ruling constitutional the law providing for the use of gill nets with a 2 1/2 inch mesh will mean strict enforcement of commercial fishing laws on Lake Michigan, the conservation commission announced today.

Some 300 fishermen operating in lake shore cities were affected by the court's ruling. They insisted that the law was "local" in character, designed only to apply to Lake Michigan fishermen. The court held that the law operated for the benefit of all people in the state.

Warning that they would be forced to quit fishing for a livelihood or to move to other fishing grounds was sounded by the fishermen after passage of the law. The law was intended to protect certain species of fish.

The hours sped by but a personal phone call from Max set for early this morning did not come because of atmospheric disturbances which interfered somewhat with the radio casting of the match. Still, brother Schmeling refused to go to bed. In the forenoon she decided to take a little ride in the open air.

The first reunion to be staged by that regiment during the 32 years that have passed since its muster out is to be held here at noon June 27 in conjunction with the state encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans. It will be in the form of a dinner at Conway hotel at which Gen. C. R. Boardman, adjutant general of Wisconsin during the Spanish war, will be the chief speaker.

Gov. Fred W. Greene of Michigan, national commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, will attend and an effort is being made to have Gov. Walter J. Kohler present. Former members of the regiment desiring to attend will notify Co. G. Pomeroy here.

Philadelphia — Captain Joel T. Boone, President Hoover's physician, believes that the United States is better off under present conditions, had as they are, than without prohibition. Expressing his views at Hanemann Hotel, Boone said: "I am convinced that prohibition has done more to help the country than any other measure in its history."

Farrell, 16 Sherman-st., pleaded not guilty and went to county jail when he failed to produce $100 bond. His case was set for June 17.

SOUTHERN CROSS HOP AGAIN IS POSTPONED

Dublin — (AP)—After all arrangements had been made for the Southern Cross to fly to the Curragh camp this afternoon had weather again dashed the hopes of Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith for a take off on the anticipated flight to America.

Kingsford-Smith stated that while the frequent postponements which have marred his plans have caused him much annoyance, he hoped to start his westward transatlantic flight Sunday morning.

Reports from Detroit have shown that water in swimming pools can be purified by the germ-killing rays of ultraviolet light.

Boy scouts of Troop 4, American legion, constructed a log cabin which is to be erected at Erb park Saturday to serve as a camp kitchen for the two-day Camp O' Ral of 400 valley scouts. The cabin is convertible. It was fashioned in the basement of Armory C.

sunk in the kitchen and was covered with ice, he said there was "lots of it attractively served," Burdine testified.

"Did he (Capone) serve you with liquor?" the department store owner was asked.

"He had a colored man to do the serving," Mr. Capone assisted and very nicely."

Capone, Burdine said, suggested "I might fix up a party at some place outside his home and invite him as a guest, but I couldn't do that."

"Why not?" an attorney for Capone asked Burdine.

"It wouldn't do," Burdine answered. "He is what we call a gangster. He doesn't fit in with my friends."

Capone leaned forward in his chair in the courtroom, muttered to himself and appeared deeply affected when Burdine described him as a gangster.

"Did you ever see him kill anybody?" a Capone attorney asked Burdine.

"Never in my life," replied the businessman.

Asked to define a "gangster" Burdine said he is "a man who kills when it is necessary, who carries his point with whatever weapon at hand who takes the law into his own hands, has no respect for law or decent society, who makes his own laws, who thinks nothing of human life or its sanctity."

season will be a fish pool and fountain banked with flowers and moss.

The outside of the Armory will be decorated with lattice work and evergreen, in an effort to attract the attention of the public to the floral display inside.

Contributors to the show are asked to cut their exhibit flowers early in the morning, while the dew is still on, and before the sun rises if possible, so they will have the best possible exhibit to survive the two days of exhibition. Persons displaying flowers that will in one day may replace their flowers or change the water early Sunday morning.

Attendees at the show will take every precaution to help the displays retain their freshness during the two days of the show.

Exhibits will be received at the Armory from 7 o'clock Saturday morning until noon. Judges will begin their work at 1 o'clock, finishing in time for the public opening of the Armory at 3 o'clock. The Armory will be closed at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, and will open again at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, so that churchgoers may drop in on their way to or from church. Contrary to the usual procedure, the show will close at 6 o'clock Sunday night, as it has been found that it is difficult to keep flowers from wilting after a longer period.

Commercial firms who will have exhibits at the show are Carl Uecker Evergreen company, New London; Coe, Converse and Edwards nursery, Fort Atkinson; Sissons Peony Farm, Rosendale; Riverside Greenhouse, Horne Beautiful; Schiele Hardware company, Wilmot; Ganss, Pettibone-Grocery company, Sunnyside Greenhouse, Herman Holtz, Geenen's, Johnson Peony farm, Bretschneider Furniture company and Gloudehans Gage company.

County Insurance Again Awarded To Same Firm

The proposal of the English company was approximately $1,040.74 for the liability and property damage premium and $3,528.05 for the compensation insurance premium, the figures being the same as those of the other stock companies bidding and according to rates of the Wisconsin inspection bureau for casualty companies.

The Wausau company's estimated premium on the liability and property damage policies was $1,042.50 with a current dividend rate of $268.62, making a possible premium of only $773.88. The compensation premium was estimated at $3,163.64 and with the current dividend rate estimated at $662.69 would make a possible premium of $2,500.95. The Wausau company writes off 10 per cent of the state board rate of stock companies and after the dividend, could hope for little relief except through the export debenture plan, which was stricken out of the bill by the conferees.

TARIFF MEASURE PASSED BY SENATE BY 2-VOTE MARGIN

Prompt Action Expected from House—Bill Then Goes to Hoover

"ORATIONS FOR FARMERS"
"The American farmer," he said, "is the most popular individual at election time but after that he loses his popularity except for orations in his behalf."

Connally said the bill "increases the cost to the people at home and increases the number of their enemies abroad."

Asserting the "world is in rebellion against these taxes of congress," Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, contended foreign countries would "no longer give us their trade."

"It do not see how this bill can possibly help agriculture, the most depressed of all industries," he continued. "The little help held out for agriculture, will be many times offset by the increased burdens levied on it by the excessive industrial rates."

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, asserted "as a feature of the administration's farm relief program the bill is an abortion."

"It repudiates and intensifies inequalities and discriminations between agriculture and other industries," he said. "For this reason it violates the platforms of both political parties."

BEGAN UNDER CAL
One year, five months, and six days had elapsed from the day the bill began to take form back in the waning weeks of the Coolidge administration.

Meeting an hour earlier than usual to give remaining speakers an opportunity to explain their votes, the debate-exhausted legislators were given but three hours to talk tariff before the showdown vote.

House leaders had announced that in event of affirmative senate action they would call for the conference agreement tomorrow with a view of completing congressional approval before the weekend.

President Hoover would have a week or more to sign or veto the bill before the end of the session should he sign it—and administration chiefs have predicted he will—the first tariff legislation in eight years and the twenty-first revision since the initial tariff act of 1879 would take effect the following day.

WOULD BOOST REVENUE
Supplanting the Republican Fordney-McCumber act of 1922, the measure would raise an estimated revenue of $500,000,000 or $107,000,000 more than the existing law based on 1928 importations.

Of 3,218 named commodities and basket clauses comprising the measure, changes are made in 1,123, or about 32 per cent of the total. There are 887 increases in rates and 235 decreases, 75 items transferred from the dutiable to the free list and 48 now on the free list placed in the protective category. Over 330 of the increases are on farm products.

High duties on sugar, dairy products, livestock, meats, grains, fruits, fresh and canned vegetables, nuts and seeds are provided in the agriculture schedule, which is raised to the highest general level in history.

Many of the products given protection for the first time in years are of first importance. They include brick, cement, softwood lumber, long staple cotton, hides, leathers, boots and shoes, all on the free list. The duty of $1 per pound and 10 per cent on rubber is on the protective list. It would not become operative unless Canada or Mexico taxed American exports of lumber.

LOOK FOR ADJOURNMENT
With the end of the long tariff controversy in sight, congressional leaders are looking forward to an adjournment a week from tomorrow.

The special session of the senate for consideration of the London naval limitations treaty will be called immediately by President Hoover but the weary senators hope to join the membership in vacation by July 4.

Rivers and harbors legislation gets first call in the senate after the tariff legislation is disposed of today. It probably will not be taken up for debate until Monday. Chairman Johnson of the commerce committee is hopeful of speedy action on the measure providing an outlay of more than $120,000,000 over a three-year period in waterways improvements.

The house bill liberalizing veterans relief is second on the calendar of preferred legislation and it gets attention immediately after the rivers and harbors contest is ended.

CANDIDATES TAKE OUT NOMINATION PAPERS

Indication that the race for sheriff of Outagamie-co again will be a free for all was given Friday when four candidates took out nomination papers to be circulated by their friends. Friday was the first day for circulating papers.

Papers were taken out for John Lapen, incumbent, Otto H. Zuehlke, a former sheriff, Barney Hoffman and Fred W. Giese, who was removed from the office by Gov. Walter J. Kohler early this year.

Stanley Stalder, district attorney, again will be a candidate for his office, as will Samuel Sigman, William Bay, Kaukauna, took out papers for nomination as candidate for assemblyman from the second district of Outagamie-co.

Chinese Radicals To Be Tried By Jury Of 6 Men

Shanghai — (AP)—All Chinese radicals and Communists who fall into the hands of the police will hereafter be given trial before a jury of six members in the higher courts of China rather than before a single judge in the district courts.

This was decided at a recent meeting of the judicial department of the National government at Nanking after several disputes had arisen in the courts of the country over the disposition of all reactionary cases.

Communists and professional agitators against the government arrested in the international settlement were formerly tried in the old provisional court but with the restoration of that tribunal to a complete Chinese status, a conflict arose between this court and the courts of the Chinese city regarding the Reds.

The greater Shanghai municipality authorities maintained that all radicals and Communists taken in the settlement should be turned over to their trial since the foreign concession court was no longer partly in the hands of the foreigners. The judicial department settled the matter by taking the power to try reactionaries completely away from the lower courts and ordering that before a higher tribunal. Whether this will give the Communists a better chance of escaping death is another matter.

In the past, all Reds and professional anti-government agitators turned over from the international settlement to the Chinese authorities were usually marched before a firing squad after a trial that lasted half an hour or so. In most cases, such trials merely consisted of taking the unfortunate man's name and address, his age and the name of his father or mother.

The man asked whether he was guilty or not, but no matter what his answer, the investigations of the foreign officers in the settlement had generally established the fact that he was, before they turned him over to the Chinese.

The Chinese authorities have a quick and efficient way of dealing with men who oppose the government, so quick that when such a man's guilt is established he is generally promptly marched out to the execution grounds and shot.

Schmeling Offered $100,000 To Fight Young Stribling

Griffin, Ga.—(AP)—E. A. Scales, chairman of the Griffin Boxing commission, today telegraphed Max Schmeling that he would pay him $100,000 and a split in the gate receipts to fight W. L. (Young Stribling) here Labor day.

Scales said he would build a stadium to seat 75,000 persons and put $50,000 on deposit as a guarantee of good faith if Schmeling would sign a contract to meet Stribling, subject to the approval of the Griffin Boxing commission, and the New York Boxing commission.

Griffin is located midway between Atlanta and Macon, the home of Stribling.

PHONES TO MOTHER

Berlin—(AP)—Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, talked with his mother for ten minutes over the transatlantic telephone this forenoon, giving her personally the news of his victory over Jack Sharkey on a foul last night.

Frau Schmeling had waited many hours for her phone to ring. Bad atmospheric conditions had prevented the call. This time the reception was satisfactory.

"Max said he felt all right," Frau Schmeling told the Associated Press. "But whether he only told me that to make me feel happier I do not know. One can not tell. But anyway I heard the boy laugh so I hope all is well and I feel reassured."

Max told his mother that he was coming home just as soon as his business in the United States could be cleared up.

"Meanwhile," Frau Schmeling added, "there's going to be no junketing at home here over the result—not until Max comes back."

Then she settled down for a long postponed nap.

NAMES NOT ON TROPHY

New York—(AP)—The Evening Post today quotes William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York State Athletic commission, as saying that Max Schmeling's name will not be engraved on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy, emblematic of the world heavyweight championship.

"No man who wins the title on a foul will have his name engraved on the trophy," said the "solid man."

"I am thoroughly disgusted. I've spent two years in trying to get a solution to the heavyweight puzzle and now a thing like this has to occur."

James A. Farley, chairman of the New York commission, declined to discuss the muddled situation until the committee in charge of the trophy award holds a meeting.

REVIEW BELIEVES BOTTOM OF MARKET HAS BEEN REACHED

Analytical Department of Financial Publication Ends Long Study

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1936, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—One of the largest of America's corporations, which is operating in the public utility field, through its analytical department has made a close study of the commodity price situation and has arrived at the conclusion that the bottom has about been reached for individual commodities and for the average of the group. The study on which this decision is premised, has been a long and elaborate one and is an important contribution to the moderate list of favorable influences affecting the business world.

CONTINUES LONG TIME
The decline in commodities has continued for many months and has been one of the factors in the postponement of industrial recovery. The slump has been persistent and pronounced ever since the stock market crashed in late autumn. It is represented in a drop in prices since then of between 10 and 11 per cent. The general commodity price average has been affected mainly by the reaction in agricultural products in the metals, in rubber, silver, sugar, coffee, silk and hides. Nearly every week since November one or more leading commodities has broken below its previous level.

In the case of silver, rubber and sugar the quotations have been under those quoted for some time. A sensation of some instances were the absolute prices in the history of the commodity.

It has been argued by many that it will only be when commodity prices are stabilized that permanent recovery in business can be expected. Therefore, the prediction that the bottom has been reached seems to bear out the conclusions of various statistical organizations and surveys made by banking institutions that definite signs of industrial improvement will be apparent late in the summer or in the early autumn. By that time, it is expected that inventories will have been reduced to a normal basis and, instead of there being a buyer's market as has been the case for the last nine months, the advantage will be with the sellers of raw materials and manufactured goods.

LEVEL NOT FAR OFF
Similar conclusions as to the termination of the commodity price decline reached by the corporation whose survey has just been completed have also been indicated by government agencies. They proved to be a little ahead of the times. The June circular of the National City bank said of the commodity price situation "the feeling is growing that, considering the drastic character of the declines in some articles, the final resistance level cannot be far off."

Opportunity has been provided through the price decline for the accumulation of large amounts of commodities entering into the manufacture of goods. This has been taken advantage of on a large scale by corporations that have had substantial cash resources and have been buying commodities for future deliveries. The effect of this will be shown in more favorable operating profits later in the year and during 1937.

EXPLAIN DECLARATIONS
There are also indications that some of the dividend reductions announced recently and supplemented by statements that this policy was adopted in order to conserve cash resources, were influenced more by the desire to buy cheap commodities than by poor earnings.

MAN SURRENDERS IN GIRL POISON CASE

Prosecutor to Decide if Charges Will Be Made Against Him

Milwaukee — (AP) — Dist. Atty. George A. Bowman today was to decide if charges were to be placed against Donald Allison, married Chicagoan, held in connection with the poison death of Ursula Lang, 19, found dead in a downtown hotel here.

Allison surrendered to police yesterday. He admitted, police said, buying the poison that resulted in the German immigrant girl's death, but denied he forced her to take it. He said she asked him to get the poison. She took it while he was asleep with her in the hotel, he said, and he awoke to find her dead.

Allison said he hurried note identifying the girl and left the city. He went to his father's home in White Cloud, Mich., he said, and later returned to Chicago to his wife. His brother, he said, persuaded him to surrender.

The girl killed herself because of love for him, Allison told police. He said they left Chicago last Friday after the girl quarreled with his wife. They stayed Friday in Hammond, Ind., he said, and then came here. The girl's body was found Sunday afternoon.

Detectives said they found bits of poison labels scattered on the floor of the hotel room and believed the girl was a victim of a suicide pact in which the man failed to live up to his part of the bargain.

ORCHESTRA DIRECTOR HURT IN COLLISION

Miss Mildred Couch, director of an orchestra at Waverly Beach, dislocated her shoulder in an auto accident here at 5:30 Thursday afternoon. Six other girls in the car, all members of the orchestra, were slightly injured.

The car, going south on Highway 114 collided with a car driven by an unidentified Appleton man which turned north on the Lake road. The car driven by Miss Couch was thrown into a fence on the right side of the road, and turned over.

VICTOR Orthophonic Records

The Element of Humor pervades the selections in this week's release of new records. Rudy Vallee's record is a "peach" — a fast moving fox trot with a vocal refrain that is screamingly funny. It's about a girl who must have been in the back row when the brains were given out, for she's SO dumb that she doesn't even know who Rudy Vallee is!

TRADE SLUMP IS REFLECTED IN CONGRESS

All Parts of Country Now Anxious for Defeat of Tariff Measure

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1930, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington —(CPA)— The financial and business doldrums being experienced in the marts of trade are reflected here nowadays in the determination of leaders to get through with the legislative matters on hand and adjourn.

The anxiety revealed in New York with reference to the tariff bill and its possible ill-effects on foreign trade has been conveyed here in the last 24 hours by an uninterrupted flow of inquiries from all parts of the country as to whether there was a chance of seeing the tariff bill killed. With some the wish is father to the thought but with others there is an apprehension lest those who have been expecting tariff increases and have made their plans accordingly would find them denied at the last moment.

The drop in security prices coupled with the reports of poor earnings on the part of corporations have convinced the politicians that the autumn elections are going to show a large protest vote against the party in power. This idea has been carried so far that some of the Republicans have wondered whether it wouldn't be best to bury the tariff bill in some way after all.

LEADERS CAN'T RETREAT

Matters have gone so far that the Republican leadership cannot help itself and feels it must go through with the tariff though it secretly wishes there were enough insurgent and Democrats to form a coalition to take the responsibility of killing the measure off the hands of those who sponsored it. The truth is the Hawley bill which passed the house and which was revised by Senator Smoot and his colleagues was just about what the protectionists group wanted but when the insurgent Democratic coalition got through with the measure they changed it so much that it satisfied neither the high protectionists nor the low tariff groups. Under such circumstances the sentiment in favor of a status quo namely the Fordney-McCumber bill reaches a high point of plausibility. Had there been a realization here a month ago of the bad business conditions that are prevailing now it is safe to assume that the tariff bill would never have gotten into its final stages, during the summer months but would have

Court Must Decide Which Of Two Wills Is Legal

Judge Fred V. Heinemann has been asked to rule on the legality of two wills made by the late Laura A. McLeish, Appleton, who died last January. Testimony in the case was taken Tuesday and Wednesday before Judge Heinemann, who now has the case under advisement. He has asked attorneys representing heirs in the two wills to file briefs.

Mrs. McLeish, wife of William McLeish, former manufacturer of car movers here, left an estate valued at approximately $24,000. In 1915, previous to the death of her husband, she named McLeish as executor and bequeathed property to several blood relatives living in New York state, to Mrs. Emma Fulmer, Appleton, and to children of her husband by his first marriage, living in Montana.

In 1927, while visiting her step children in Montana, she made another will in which all the property was left to the children and none to the blood relatives. Both wills have been offered for probate and Judge Heinemann now must decide which is legal.

The step children who are heirs under the new will, claim the document takes precedence to the first will, while the blood relatives and Mrs. Fulmer claim the last will was made when Mrs. McLeish lacked capacity to draw up a will and while she was under undue influences.

The case is postponed until the December session.

If someone had the freedom from political restraint to champion a movement to defer decision on tariff rates until the business situation had cleared up and the export trade could be better appraised there is no doubt he would win substantial support in the senate. There is on the other hand the suggestion in some quarters that it is better to revise the tariff at a time of world-wide readjustment to new conditions than when the recovery had started in earnest and business is going at full speed.

Official impressions about the business situation have been so varied in the last six months that no real estimate or forecast has been accepted as fundamental. There is now developing however the idea that the bottom of business has been reached and that an upturn toward the end of the year may be expected. The hope of course is that it will put in its appearance before the November election but those who are retaining this viewpoint are counting upon a revival in the bond market to come in August and thereby release huge blocks of capital for permanent financing and refinancing so as to stimulate the expansion of those companies which are in a favorable position to carry on plans of expansion which have been retarded by high money rates of the last two years.

22 MORE TERRORISTS CAUGHT BY JAPANESE

Tokio —(AP)— Twenty-two alleged Korean terrorists were arrested Thursday following a fierce engagement with Japanese consular police near Lungchingsun, in the Chientao district of Kirin province of Manchuria, the Japanese consul for the district reported. One of the Koreans was killed and two were wounded during the fighting.

The arrests brought the total growing out of the disorders in the Chientao district to 40. Two Koreans were killed and one arrested two days ago at Lungchingsun, at which time police officials declared Kim, one of those killed, was ring-leader of a group of Koreans allegedly plotting the bombing and burning of Japanese consulates and factories throughout the area.

The Chientao district is just across the Yumen river from Korea. The present series of disturbances there began May 31 with an attack by Koreans on several Kirin towns in which Japanese have industrial and other interests.

GOVERNMENT OPENS INVESTIGATION OF FAIRFAX COLLISION

Boat Companies Want to Know if Reports of Cowardice Are True

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Copyright 1930 by the Cons. Press)
Boston.—(C.P.A.)—Federal investigation of the collision of the ships Fairfax and Pinthis, off Scituate, Mass., Tuesday night, with a loss of 47 lives, began here at 9 o'clock today. It will sift a mass of sharply conflicting testimony.

The incoherent stories of the passengers and the silencing of the crew of the Merchants & Miners company, owners of the Fairfax, have left this appalling sea horror with many still unexplained and conflicting accounts which may or may not be resolved by the federal inquiry.

The few minutes of blazing agony which sank the oil tanker obliterated every wisp of evidence bearing on the responsibility of the captain and crew of the Pinthis. This reporter could learn of no survivor of the Fairfax who had heard the siren of the tanker, or who had evidence that it had been sighted in time to make possible an avoidance of the collision.

DISCOUNT STORIES
Stories that members of the Fairfax crew drove passengers from the lifeboats with clubs and hatchets apparently faded on closer investigation. It was learned today that the company will offer evidence showing that the falls had jammed on the lifeboats and that the crew was ordered to procure hatchets to cut the ropes. Passengers were kept clear of the boats while this was in process, the testimony will show.

The investigation conducted by O. G. Haines and Captain Charles M. Lyons, federal steamboat inspectors for this district, will center on the following:

The reported failure of the ship's officers to send out an SOS, a detail on which company representatives tell conflicting stories, according to Captain Lyons.

The question of the responsibility of the company in taking the Fairfax from the dock in an impenetrable fog.

The question of whether the siren of the Fairfax was being sounded at the time, and a check on the speed of the Fairfax.

The removal of the injured to Boston, with a considerable loss of time, while nearer landing places were available.

Stories of passengers that life preservers were inaccessible and that it was necessary to chop through the doors of staterooms to obtain them.

PROBE SOS CALL
The probe into the sending of the SOS is expected to assume great importance. Dr. R. McNeil, vice-president of the Merchants & Miners company, who was on board the Fairfax, is expected to testify that an effort immediately was made to send out an SOS, but that the radio room by the fire; that, after the burned antennae had been repaired, he immediately sought and procured the aid of the Gloucester, sister ship of the Fairfax.

George F. Farrell, of Everett, Mass., chief signalman of the U. S. S. Lexington, who gave one of the most coherent accounts of the disaster, said he had been unable to learn whether an effort had been made to send out an SOS, but that he had been informed that none had been sent.

While the company still rigidly enjoins silence on all its representatives, it was learned at the offices of its attorneys that the defense against the case of the government officials will be substantially as follows:

Life preservers were inaccessible in some cases because frantic passengers had locked themselves in the cabins and it was necessary to chop open the doors of staterooms to get them.

BLAST WRECKED WIRES
The blast of flame which enveloped the ship almost instantly disabled the wireless and aid was sought and obtained as soon as it could be repaired.

A boat was lowered and a search for survivors made.

It will be denied that the ship's officers neglected the rising panic on the ship and testimony will be offered to show that officers moved quickly among the passengers, reassuring them and directing them to the lifeboats.

Testimony that the Fairfax was proceeding at five or six knots an hour and that its siren was blowing steadily.

This is the first instance of a sea disaster in which one of the vessels involved has been instantly and completely obliterated, and there are many enigmas left in its wake.

While coast guard stations reported that they had received no SOS, the message from the Fairfax to the Gloucester was picked up by the coast guard cutter Tampa, which asked if the Fairfax was in need of assistance. The Fairfax replied "All

O. K. now," according to coast guard officials. The question of how a message which, according to earlier accounts had been sent in the secret code of the company, could thus be received and read by the coast guard ship is still to be explained.

NEED NOT FEAR
Lisbon—The recent fact of cigarette lighters has cut the revenue Portugal has been receiving from the sale of matches considerably. Consequently, in order to protect the match industry, the government has decided that a person must own a license to operate a cigarette lighter. This license costs $1.50, and would buy enough matches to last one man nearly a year.

PORTUGUESE WOMEN COPS MUST BE TALL

Lisbon, Portugal—(AP)—Half a dozen six-foot Amazons will comprise Portugal's first corps of police women.

The requirement that they be at least six feet in height ruled out most of the 350 women who applied. Candidates also must not be more than 35 years of age, unmarried and possess a college education.

The six women chosen for the initial squad are undergoing rigorous training before undertaking their duties of watching over erring women and minors.

Later, when the force is increased, police women will be attached to frontier stations to apprehend female smugglers.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

SUE was almost afraid to open her pocketbook. She did not know why she feared, that the emerald would be gone unless it was because she had forgotten it completely.

But it was there, winking resplendently. She slipped it back in the purse and went to bed. But when she awakened in the morning, and started to the office, it annoyed her to know that it was in her possession. Girls... the kind of girls to whom she belonged... did not keep priceless engagement rings. But Harry had refused to take back the jewel.

Jack was talking to his father when Sue entered. Miss Parsons said that they had asked that she come into Judge Thynston's office at once. So she removed the crushed blue hat and powdered her nose with a wisp of cotton ball, and knocked at the door.

Last night seemed very far away. The Jack whom she had known then belonged to a gay and romantic adventure. But the one who faced her across the desk, his keen eyes intent on the papers in his hand, was a determined young lawyer. If she had wondered at his Peter-Pan attitude of life then, she didn't now. He had grown up overnight. Then she realized that the thing which endeared him to her was the combination of masculine determination and force with the boyish enthusiasm and exuberance. One without the other would not have been enough.

For a few minutes the three of them forgot everything but the case. Sue welcomed the knowledge that she belonged, that they considered her a necessary part of the firm.

And then, as she and Jack came into the main office together, Barbara arose from a chair. She was wearing a coat dress of light-weight black tweed which tied apron-like, over a white foulard which was splashed with white polka dots. A black beret, whose fullness was held back by a black grosgrain ribbon perched jauntily on her head, and the matching lizard skin pumps had ridiculously high heels. There was something gay and daring and gaminish about that outfit. Sue felt like a Cinderella who had gone to a party in a white muslin dress with a big blue sash, although she knew that her own simple tailored blue dress with its crisp white collar and cuffs was attractive and smart.

Barbara's golden curls escaped from the confining black tam, and a small golden knot clustered at the nape of her neck. Her eyes sparkled with a glow which comes when a girl has received a full-length compliment from her mirror and expects to hear a repetition from a good many other sources.

"I've been waiting and waiting, Jack," she said slowly. "But I honestly didn't mind a bit because I knew you were doing some dreadfully important work." She flashed him a smile that was as sweet as sugar cane and sugar beets, it seemed to Sue, who knew that Barbara had arrived since she had. "I'm so wonderfully proud of the magnificent work you are doing. This case would have gone flat without you. Everybody says so!"

Jack beamed his appreciation, but he looked slightly embarrassed. Sue knew that he realized just how small a part he had played in it all.

"Ready to go to the courtroom with me?" Jack asked, his admiring eyes still on the deep-hued lilac ones.

"Oh, Jack, that's what I wanted to tell you. I'm ever and ever so sorry, but the dressmaker has to have me at 10 o'clock or she won't fit my dress at all for tonight. But I'll come when she's through."

Sue caught the swift disappointment in Jack's eyes.

Next: Sue makes a decision. (Copyright, 1930, NEA Service, Inc.)

Long Trips Not Needed To Locate Good Fishing

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

When the time comes for the anglers to plan their vacation fishing trips, the bulk of them scan maps of Vilas, Oneida and other counties in search of waters which have the reputation of being good. Yet, one must know from experience, or from the word of some one who is posted, where to go or take the consequences of an unfruitful trip. If one is not posted in advance, he is apt to spend the short time usually allotted him in racing about in vain attempts to "get set."

It is not necessary to make these long, questionable trips. And let me tell you that after you have reached the rainbow, very, very often you find no pot of gold. Therefore, as I say, unless you are personally posted, or have advice from reliable sources, you will do far better to seek the "denizens of the deep" in your own backyard, so to speak. By that I mean that many nearby waters will yield you just as many fish, after all, as you could possibly get from the lakes and streams of the far-famed "fishermens' paradise." Just for example, let us consider Marinette and Oconto counties. There is lake after lake and stream after stream in their boundaries. Many of the lakes have no names and are little known by the outsiders, yet most of them have fish. I made a trip of investigation last Sunday to a portion of Marinette-co lying south and east of famous Thunder Mountain. The whole country is dotted with beautiful lakes. True, aside from Thunder Lake, they are not large as compared with some waters "away up north." But, for that very reason, they are more easily fished. Very few have even a cottage on them, and still fewer have boats.

Thunder Lake is a fine, large body of water, very deep, cold and nicely adapted as a home for big bass and musky trout. On the same chain with it are Sand and Mirror lakes. These are also cold and deep—ideal for the bass and trout which they harbor. These waters are fed by numberless springs which gush out from the rocks or seep from the swamp bottoms. Between Sand and Thunder lakes, set deeply in the heavy timber, lies one of the finest spring holes for trout that I have ever seen. It is literally filled with Speckled and Rainbow beauties from a few inches in length to a pound or more in weight. If you think there are no more trout in Marinette-co I suggest you visit that spring hole. Fishing is prohibited there, of course, by state law. It is therefore, sanctuary, a home for the fish which you nor I may disturb.

Other lakes are Grass, Frying Pan, Round and a host of others many of which, as I have said, are yet unnamed. I went just over the boundary into Oconto co and visited Bass and McDonald lakes—both fine bodies of water. Bass covers at least forty acres. It was so named because of the great number of Oswego bass it contains. There is not a cabin on its shores, nor a boat, so far as I could ascertain. Just for that reason, the fishing in such waters should last far longer than that of the "far-north" lakes which are surrounded by cabins, dotted with boats and combed for their inhabitants without letup.

MUST ANTICIPATE HOSPITAL NEEDS, SAYS LEGION HEAD

Veterans Should Be Provided With Care Without Delay, He Claims

Platteville—(AP)—A government agency designed to anticipate the need of hospitalization for disabled war veterans in order to provide for their care without delay was advocated by O. L. Bodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, in an address here today.

The national commander explained the reason for the legion's effort to obtain legislation for the disabled at the present session of congress. He also urged the prompt appointment of a competent commission, provided for in the resolution which was adopted by the senate to study the principle of universal service in time of war.

"In view of the unfair neglect of the disabled, and in view of the fact that it is poor economy for the government to wait until an acute situation confronts it, the Legion favors a hospital policy which contemplates a government agency to anticipate the need, in order that a man can get just and fair care in time, perhaps, to give him a fighting chance for recovery," Bodenhamer said.

"Last fall the national convention held in Louisville it was conservatively estimated that there was an urgent need at that time for 9,000 beds, and that the increase in the cases of mentally sick alone is 600 per month."

Regarding legislation for the disabled now pending in the U. S. senate Bodenhamer said:

"Recently the house of representatives passed a measure for the relief of the disabled, after adding amendments which greatly increased the expenditures requested in the original Johnson bill which the Legion sponsored. This legislation is now pending in the senate."

"Our disabled are in need of immediate relief. Because of this need the Legion has supported the Johnson bill as it came originally from the veterans committee of the house. It would have benefited some 84,000 disabled men. It would have cost according to estimate, less than one hundred million dollars. It would likely have met with the approval of the president. We were willing to go so far as to amend this bill in order to reduce the cost if necessary to receive presidential approval. What the disabled need is immediate and material assistance and not a lot of theoretical ideas which have no chance of maturing for years to come. The original Johnson bill is not perfect, but it would give needed assistance. Perfecting amendments could have been offered later without endangering the final approval of the basic provisions of the Johnson bill."

Regarding the resolution providing for a commission to study the principle of universal service Commander Bodenhamer said in part:

"The existence of the universal draft, of service, plan would make this nation invulnerable. It would throw world wide men and property into the defense of our rights. The existence of such a principle in the law of our land would be the greatest insurance this country could have for a quick and sure success if conflict should be forced upon us."

TROUBLE BREWING IN GOVERNMENTAL RANKS IN CHICAGO

Face Another Political and Economic Crisis—Gangsters Active

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1936 by Cons. Press
Chicago—Government in Chicago today is pictured as skating on extremely thin ice. The slightest hitch in pre-arranged plans, involving complicated negotiation through treacherous political waters, and the result might be national chaos.

This situation developed at a time when the city is troubled by mounting gang violence, with a disturbing mayoral election not far away and with greedy political groups striving for a strangle hold on its purse strings.

It was emphasized now by reports from the east that responsible individuals were saying that Chicago citizens might soon be called upon to patrol their own streets. Money for police and other services will give out July 1, unless legislative relief is forthcoming.

While inclined to minimize the possibility of immediate crisis, provided the special session of the state legislature, which convenes again June 17, agrees to plans for solving the local problem, those in closest touch with the situation say that troublesome times may lie ahead during the next year.

"The legislature must pass our bills or the local government will cease to function," advised Silas Strawn, head of the citizens' committee which raised $74,000,000 to help Chicago out of one hole.

"We will have to lay off 800 police July 1 and 400 firemen, and leave the streets dark if the legislature doesn't help us," said Alderman Nelson, Mayor Thompson's floor leader.

SEE DISTANT HELP

Present prospects, subject to change with the whims of politicians, are that help will be forthcoming and that money will be made available for immediate needs without a referendum. But if there is delay, pay-less days will be back at the city hall, inasmuch as the $74,000,000 fund subscribed by business houses, is soon to be exhausted.

Difficulty is seen from another direction by those best informed.

"The same politicians who so man-handled assessments of taxes in the past, that two years were required to get the tax levies back into control," these individuals advise. "They are doing their best to get things in a jam again by their determination to maintain a patronage machine and to play politics with assessments."

"There were forty thousand lawsuits filed in 1928 when property owners became convinced that taxes were being juggled for political purposes. Unless the attitude of men in charge changes, a similar situation may arise again very soon. One fear keeps the tax levying machine from wholesale operations of political nature."

GOVERNMENT IN DANGER

Should another jam arise as a result of taxes, the whole machinery of local government would break down. It is evident that thought has been given this possibility by the fact that business men have been considering the problem that would arise. In order to maintain necessary services—such as police and fire—those who have been studying the situation are of the opinion that banks and big business houses would advance money in return for judgments against the city. With the regular governmental organization broke, the way would be opened for a clean-up and reorganization such as the better element of the town has urged for 20 years.

"Even if money if not to be had on July 1, it is not probable that police and other workers would leave their jobs at once," explained one of those dealing with the situation. "They worked two months early this year without pay and doubtless would do so again. But it is not possible that in the future, before the problem is definitely straightened out, citizen patrols may be called upon to do the city's policing, and judging by the present temper of the people that type of force might bring a thorough clean-up."

The future depends largely on the present special session of the legislature and on the mayoral election next April. In the meantime Chicago sits right on the brink of a governmental collapse.

SENTENCE APPLETON
BOY TO REFORMATORYTurned Over to Green Bay
Authorities by State Board of Control

Gilbert Ahrens, who says his home is in Appleton, was sentenced from one to two years in Green Bay reformatory when arraigned before Judge N. J. Monahan in municipal court, Green Bay, Thursday morning.

Ahrens was arrested about a month ago after he had taken a truck from W. W. Lockhart, by whom he was employed as driver, and motored to Appleton to deliver his laundry. He crashed into a ditch on County Trunk H while enroute.

Upon being arraigned in court at Green Bay at that time he was paroled to the state board of control. A week ago he stole a pair of shoes from another workman who was staying at the same boarding house.

He was turned over to Green Bay authorities by the state board of control Wednesday.

Now "Juicy" Wants To Find
Man Who Took That Gun

This is the story of a gun! Let the owner of the weapon tell it.

"For 15 years that old revolver lay in a drawer in the case in my shop. And last week I noticed it was gone. Mostly I value the gun because it belonged to my father and it is a sort of keepsake. Physically the weapon wasn't of much value, but to me it meant a lot."

"I first missed it last week when I went to get it to clean and oil it for a trip up north. I am going to fish muskies with some friends and it is a good policy to carry a revolver along."

"Say I'd know that gun anywhere. The silver was all worn off the handle and there were rust spots on it that made it almost impossible for me to mistake it."

"Well, what do you think happened. Last week I went over to a sport shop and told the proprietor I wanted to rent a gun. He opened a drawer and said:

"And right there on top I saw that old gun of mine."

"I said, 'Why that's my gun. Where did you get it?'"

"I don't know if I was wise to do this or not. Perhaps I don't want to know who walked into the back room of my shop and sold the old weapon. Can you imagine anything like that."

And then to be certain that I hadn't made a mistake I called my boy over and he looked in the drawer and said: 'Why there is the gun you've missed.'

"So I'm certain it's my revolver. The proprietor is checking his lists to see if he has a record of who brought the gun in. It was either pawned or brought in to be cleaned."

A. A. Gritzmacher, an Appleton barber, otherwise known as "Juicy," tells this story. He says he'll never stop believing in miracles.

JOLIET PRISON PLOT IS FRUSTRATED; 5 INVOLVED

Joliet, Ill. — (AP) — A jail delivery plot was frustrated with the discovery of a tunnel dug under the state prison wall and five convicts were in solitary confinement Thursday at the old penitentiary here.

The five persons were captured one by one as they kept their appointments yesterday to dig under the north end of the chair shop. They had taken within three feet of freedom.

William Evans, 33, notorious convict who was captured in 1927, when he escaped the prison in the guise of a priest with a satchel full of nitroglycerine to blast an avenue to freedom for a pal, is regarded as the brains of the plot.

ADVENT OF RADIO ENDS CAREERS OF SOAP BOX ORATORS

Public Demands Accomplished Talkers — Stage Survey to Find Them

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright 1930 by Cons. Press.
Washington (CPA)—The advent of radio is forcing the exist of the washboard, gesticulating soap-box orator.

Radio technique, that art of speaking before the unseen audience, which has been mastered by few, is the successor to stump oratory. This is clearly indicated in a survey just completed by the advisory committee on education by radio, appointed by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur a year ago, which calls attention to the utter shortage of trained radio speakers.

In the past few years special schools for the teaching of vocal technique have cropped into being. As a matter of fact, eight colleges offer some form of credit for successful completion of radio speaking courses. Larger radio networks and stations conduct their own studio classes, which their announcers are required to attend, and a number of commercial companies have invaded the field as pioneers.

Yet this art of radio speaking is a nebulous something, according to the advisory committee. There is no standardized method of radio speaking. It is conceded, however, that successful broadcasting, particularly of matter that seeks educational results, must begin far back of vocal technique and must go far beyond it.

TRAIN MORE SPEAKERS
So swift has been the progress of broadcasting, that there has not been sufficient opportunity to properly train radio speakers, according to the committee. There are 600-odd broadcasting stations in the country, each with from one to six announcers. And then there are radio speakers, and the newest segment, which is bound to grow larger as time goes on—radio teachers. It is in teaching via the radio that this advisory committee is primarily interested.

Secretary Wilbur assigned to it the task of ascertaining what part radio is destined to play in the national educational system, and how it can most properly supplement classroom instruction. The committee finds that of the licensed stations, 77 are owned and operated by colleges and universities, and that 80 others that do not own their stations broadcast educational matter over other outlets. It can thus be seen, the committee concludes, that radio, along with the school, the library, and the newspaper, has taken its place as a medium for the dissemination of educational material.

Ancient Foreign Cult Founded On Intrigue

Washington, D. C.—One of the richest men of Europe is an Assassin.

Not only is he an Assassin but the leader of the Assassins—a million or more of them.

"But the Assassins with a capital A have nothing to do with assassination, at least, not now," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters, that gathers up the threads of one of the strangest stories that geography has to tell.

FORTRESS PLAYS PART
"The story of the Assassins embraces three continents: Asia, Africa and Europe; it spreads over nearly 10 centuries; it is punctuated with such names as Marco Polo, Edward I of England, Genghis Khan, Sultan Sanjar of Khorasan, the King of Jerusalem, Fatima, daughter of Mohammed, the Aga Khan, Mademoiselle Andree Caron, Edward VII of England, and the $85,000 colt 'Hurricane'.

"To unravel this three-thousand-thousand-and-one Arabian Nights romance one can begin with a bath-tub in a French chateau near Chambéry or travel nearly 1,000 years to the unscalable fortress of Alamut high in the Elbruz Mountains overlooking the Plain of Teheran.

"Twenty-three years after William the Conqueror won the battle of Hastings, one Hasan Sabbah, by clever deceit, captured the fortress of Alamut. If he lived to-day Sabab could earn the name 'master mind,' or even 'anarchist,' as it was, he became famous as the founder of the Assassins. As Grand Master of a secret society he schemed to free Persia from Arab domination by working through a Moslem sect called Ismailis who traced their line of faith to Fatima, daughter of Mohammed.

MINORITY RULE WITH DAGGER
"Lacking followers in large numbers Hasan Sabbah turned for power to the dagger. He dedicated his sect to murder. From impregnable Alamut, 'the Vulture's Nest,' he ordered the killing of sultans, caliphs, kings and crusaders. It was always a ruler into which the dagger was plunged. For two centuries Hasan Sabbah, the Old Man of the Mountains, and his successors spread terror through the world.

"The Grand Master gave orders to Grand Priors serving in different districts: Kerman in Persia, Syria, and elsewhere. Each had a staff of dais, or initiates, who won converts that entered the order as 'adherents.' A chosen few became fidais, or devotees—a desperate set of adventurers and racketeers. The fidais were a sort of foreign legion drawn from many nations and peoples, selected for endurance, for daring, and fanatical exaltation.

"Marco Polo learned the astonishing secret of the Old Man of the Mountain's power over his fidais. In Alamut, this master criminal gave to be made a beautiful, secret garden crowded with roses and other flowers, trees bearing peaches and plums, and vines with luscious grapes. Fountains tossed their spray into mirror pools bordered by gay pavilions. This exquisite garden he peopled with lovely women. In the arid mountains of Persia he created a paradise to serve his evil designs.

INITIATES SEE "PARADISE"
"When trusted fidais candidates reached Alamut they were drugged and carried unconscious into the garden. Awakening, they found themselves surrounded for a few hours by all the beauty and joys imaginable, a paradise indeed. But once again they were drugged by stealth and carried out.

"When a fidai recovered his senses he found himself in the chamber of the Grand Master. 'It is true,' the Master told the candidate, 'you have been in paradise. Go slay this prince and when you return my angels will bear you again into paradise.'

"With the bright memory of paradise filling his mind every fidai welcomed danger and courted the death that would usher him into paradise forever.

"The drug that the Grand Master used on his fidais was Indian hemp, cannabis indica, also known as hashish, and from the latter term has come the name which Europe fastened on the Ismailis, 'Assassins.'

"Conrad of Montferat, crusader, fell with an Assassin's dagger in his heart immediately after he was recognized King of Jerusalem; so did Raymond, Count of Tripoli, fall. Prince Edward, later Edward I of England, was stabbed, but recovered.

Caliphs and viziers were found murdered. Sultan Sanjar organized an army to wipe out Alamut. One morning when his army was half-way to the fortress he awoke to find a dagger pinning a message to the sand beside his head. Go no further, it warned. Sultan Sanjar turned around and went home.

"But not even the Assassins could withstand Genghis Khan's westward drive. His Mongol legions captured Alamut in 1256, burned Hasan Sabbah's library and destroyed his garden. The Ismailis dispersed to Africa, India, Syria, and Persia. For six centuries the remnant colonies struggled without a central leader.

BECAME POWERFUL
"Then about 1530 in Kerman Province, Persia, Hasan Ali Shah, a descendant of Imam Ismail, rose to such prominence that he was exiled. While fleeing to India through Afghanistan Hasan Ali Shah, or the Aga Khan, did some service for the English among wild mountaineers and, upon reaching Bombay, was rewarded. He was recognized as leader of the Indian Ismailis, given the title, His Highness, and granted a pension.

"Gradually His Highness the Aga Khan of Aga Hall, Bombay, became the recognized spiritual leader of the Ismailis tribes scattered throughout the Moslem world.

"News stories from Paris bring the strange story of the Assassins down to date, for Aga Khan who recently married Andree Caron, the French dressmaker and daughter of a hotel keeper, is none other than His Highness the Aga Khan III, Knight Grand Commander of the Indian Empire; Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India; Doctor of Laws, Cambridge; Brilliant Star of Zanzibar, 1st Class; nominee for the Noble Peace Prize; racing, stable owner extraordinary, and hereditary leader of the Ismailis.

"The Aga Khan, descendant of the Assassins, numbers his subjects at more than a million, yet he has no territory. His residence is Bombay, but his home is Paris. When he paid $55,000 for the racing colt 'Hurricane' to add to his stable some of that money came, perhaps, from the dusty little towns of Qadimus and Musayid in the mountains near Homs, Syria. Of this own free will the surviving Ismailis of Syria send annually one-fifth of their revenue to the Aga Khan, one of the richest men of Europe.

"Regularly the Aga Khan visits his people and his journeys take him to Morocco, to Syria, to Zanzibar and East Africa, to Persia and the Punjab, to Sind and Bombay. The Ismailis of India are known as Khojas, a class of Mohammedans which by their devotion to trade, have been distributed far and wide. "Ismailis throughout the world pay tribute to their spiritual and hereditary leader, it is said, by the purchase of small phials of water which are shipped from Paris, or now, perhaps from the chateau near Chambéry in Savoy that the Aga Khan gave to his bride. The water is the Aga Khan's bath water, considered sacred by his people and capable of working cures."

STATES PENAL CODE IS DUE FOR REVISION

Madison (CP)—A revision of the state's penal code by the next legislature to benefit first offenders was seen today in an opinion given the state board of control by the attorney general.

A study of a number of cases elicited the fact that a first offender who is sent to prison is compelled, under the present law, to remain there longer than a person not a first offender before becoming eligible for parole consideration.

The original "indeterminate sentence" law was passed by the 1923 legislature. Under it, courts were permitted to name only the maximum of the indeterminate sentence.

The minimum sentence was defined by the statutes.

In 1927 the legislature amended the law permitting the court to fix both maximum and minimum sentences. The board of control points out that under existing law a court often names a minimum period for the first offender, which is greater in number of years than one half of the maximum penalty.

Under such conditions, criminals who have been convicted many times might become eligible for parole consideration before a first offender.

In writing the opinion, the attorney general pointed out that the only remedy was in amendment of the present law by the legislature. A request that the objectionable feature be removed will likely be made by the board of control.

Kaukauna Man Writes On Answering Fire Calls

Consideration of the problem of city fire departments answering calls of fires in rural districts must include the consideration of the relationship between city and rural residents, according to Alderman George L. Smith, Kaukauna, in an article written for The Wisconsin Municipalities magazine, a publication of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities.

He takes the stand that communities cannot afford to ignore calls to fires in rural districts. He points out that Kaukauna, situated as it is, is called on to carefully consider the interests of the rural residents, for upon their kindly attitude and consideration for the residents of Kaukauna depends much of the welfare and success of the city.

His article follows: "I believe that it has long been the policy of our city to foster and assist in every way which has for its ultimate result the welfare not only of the city of Kaukauna itself but of the residents of our rural districts. And it would, therefore, seem that under no circumstances could we afford or do we wish to ignore and treat with an air of indifference any petition or request in the nature of a call for assistance or fail to respond to the same.

"I believe also that we have a humanitarian duty to perform, in case of any such call, for we know not whether, in responding to such call, it may be the means of preserving or rescuing human life from a terrible calamity and possible death, and it would give me great pleasure indeed to feel that there would be a hearty response and immediate call to action on the part of the fire fighters when such call comes from a rural district at such a distressing time.

"There is, however, another side to this question, and one which cannot be lightly overlooked, and that our rural friends may better understand, permit me to say, as can be readily understood, that at no time can our fire fighters respond to an alarm without jeopardizing city property and human life, and to protect the interests of our citizens as well as the welfare of those dependent upon our fire ladders, it becomes imperative and necessary that the guardians of the city of Kaukauna see to it well that those dependent ones are absolutely protected, through a compliance with the workmen's compensation law and all demands of the same, and in connection with this phase of the situation it may be of interest to our community at large to know that the citizens of Kaukauna expend annually the sum of $18,000 for the purpose of maintaining an adequate fire department, and were this amount to be subdivided by the number of fire alarms responded to, we would find that during the year 1929 our fire department responded to 57 call, 50 of which were from the city and seven from the surrounding territory outside our city limits. This would really mean that it costs the city of Kaukauna $315.79 for each fire run made by the fire ladders during the year.

"It has not been my thought to make the financial consideration in connection with the responding to a fire alarm the outstanding feature in this article, for I fully believe that our relationship to our rural friends is of far more vital importance. "We are living in a section of our state which has been exceptionally blessed by nature. We pride ourselves of the fact that in comparison with other communities, in every sense of the word, our situation compares favorably.

"We find the most kindly spirit and splendid feeling existing in our midst; we find also that the residence of our surrounding community are our brothers and associates in business we find them interested in our banks, our creameries, our elevators, and in many other ways vitally interested in our city; they are a part of our very life and activity; they are our co-workers and helpers they are interested in and anxious for our development and growth and welfare; they are the patrons of our business and professional men, and in various and many ways, they have identified themselves with the life of our community.

"Surely, then, their interests should be our interests, and their welfare our welfare, and I sincerely trust that it will never be said of the city of Kaukauna that she failed in any way in performing her duties and in serving the residents of our outlying communities.

"In view of these facts, then, shall the governing body of Kaukauna authorize our city fire department to respond to an alarm from our rural friends?

"I most certainly believe and feel that they will, and it cannot be considered in any other light than their duty. We all in a certain sense are our brothers' keepers, and appreciate the fact that a call will only come when one of our rural friends neighbors is in distress and needs assistance.

"As to how great his needs may be, perhaps even he himself may not know at the time, and where there be an opportunity to render aid to assist a brother in distress, let us not be lacking, but let us respond with that hearty good will and desire to serve which is so characteristic of true Christianity and American citizenship.

"So also let our fire ladders respond to a call for help, and while we may ever hope that no human life will be periled, yet let us ever be prepared to extend such aid and assistance as shall be in our power to give.

"In responding to a call for assistance, in times of distress, it seems fitting and right that the chairmen of the various town boards in our surrounding communities should make some provision to properly reimburse the citizens of the city of Kaukauna for any expenditure made in their behalf through the action of our city fire department, and I feel sure that the officials of the city of Kaukauna will give the matter such due consideration and careful thought as shall in the end set for such a reasonable charge for services rendered in such cases as shall partially reimburse in a financial measure such expenditure as shall be made by the citizens of the city of Kaukauna in serving their friends of our rural community.

"I trust that the spirit of good fellowship and friendly attitude as now exists between our citizens and members of the surrounding community shall ever continue and that the city of Kaukauna shall ever stand ready to render such aid in times of distress as shall be reasonable and within her power to do."

SUEDE GLOVES WORN WITH FRAIL GOWNS

Old Jewelry Takes London by Storm—Girls Bring Out Many Creations

BY AILEEN LAMONT

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
New York—(CPA)—With the pale pink evening frock, Paris waits pink gloves of suede, which reach above the elbow; with the blue frock blue suede gloves and so on to the furthest stretch of ingenuity. The suede is of velvet softness, and though it is rather warm, the Parisienne does not remove her gloves throughout the evening. She eats, drinks, dances and even flirts in 'em.

Old jewelry has taken London by storm, perhaps because so much Victorian gold jewelry is stored away in the top bureau drawer. Gold rings set perhaps with garnet or little pearls, or merely made of two or three shades of gold. Heavy gold bracelets, enameled with black gold chain and gold rope necklaces. Gold butterfly pins. Gold buckles on the shoes. And, again, the evening half-coronet of gold leaves.

At last, a hat which can be worn with almost any summer costume, including white. It is of soft but firm straw, in a shade just enough brownish and just enough darker than "natural" so that it goes with practically any shade of dress. The brown stockings, so popular with a white ensemble, "tie" the hat to the rest of the costume. The only trimming is a band of ribbon in the hat shade.

DISCUSS WEED LAW AT COURTHOUSE

Meeting Monday Is Called by County Agricultural Agent

Weed commissioners, rural supervisors, and other public officials interested in weed control have been invited to attend a meeting at the courthouse next Monday at which there will be discussions of weed laws and methods of controlling weeds. The meeting is being called by Gus Bell, county agent. Either Prof. A. L. Stone, in charge of weed and seed control in the state, of Henry Lunz, his assistant, will address the group. The morning session will begin at 10 o'clock and the afternoon session at 1:30. The forenoon session will be devoted largely to questions and discussion of changes in the weed laws and its administration. The afternoon will be given over to identifying weed samples and talking over various methods of weed control. A building at Elizabeth, N. J., is filled with 5,000,000 pounds of "dry ice" and is colder inside than either the north or south pole.

Shanghai—The old German church in the consulate area, one of the first places of Christian worship in China, is to be razed for a $1,500,000 movie palace which will have talkies from 11 o'clock a. m. till after midnight.

HUBER SCORES HIS ENEMIES IN DELAY IN OUSTER TRIAL

Claims Right of Prompt Trial Has Been Denied by Supreme Court

Madison —(P)—The ouster case against Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber would have been disposed of months ago if state's counsel had been "half as industrious in preparing for trial as they have been in fighting to prevent speedy justice," the lieutenant governor said here today.

Lieut. Gov. Huber's statement came as a result of the decision of the supreme court restraining Circuit Judge A. G. Zimmerman from ordering state's counsel to file summons and complaint in the case immediately.

Counsel to prosecute Huber, is sufficient, cause was discovered, was appointed by Gov. Walter Kohler early this year. At the same time Gov. Kohler appointed counsel to prosecute Attorney General John W. Reynolds and Secretary of State Theodore Dammann. All three officers, leaders of the Progressive Republican faction, were charged as probable violators of the corrupt practices act.

"I am disappointed that the Supreme court has decided that a circuit judge has no power to relieve one in my position from the abuses of those in political power," Lieut. Gov. Huber said four months have gone by since I first demanded of Governor Kohler an opportunity for speedy justice. I have repeatedly renewed that demand. This simple

SHIOCTON FARMER STILL IS MISSING

Crews as to the whereabouts of William Hooker, Shiocton farmer, who has been missing for a week, have been lost, according to Sheriff John Lappen, who was asked to search for the man. Hooker disappeared Wednesday, June 4, after cashing a check at a Shiocton store. When last seen he was driving a Ford roadster.

but fundamental right of every citizen for prompt justice has been denied me by Governor Kohler and his appointees.

"I have great respect for the supreme court. I know that the justices have come to their honest judgment on the law. But I am sure that every fair-minded citizen will agree that the law should be speedily changed which will permit even a governor or his appointees to play with the machinery of justice for political ends."

The John Doe investigation (and inquiry held soon after the 1929 election to determine if Progressive-Republican candidates incurred unlawful campaign expenditures) was completed over a year and a half ago. All facts were available. Judge S. B. Schein of the Superior court of Dane-co, who heard the evidence immediately found me "wholly and entirely free from any violation of the corrupt practices act." My enemies nevertheless delayed until February of this year to file their complaint. The governor held the complaint in his office unacted upon for nearly six weeks. His appointees have delayed and failed to act."

The lieutenant governor said he believed public opinion "will judge the merits of a situation where a citizen is compelled to go to court to try and make his prosecutors give him his day in court."

RIVAL GANGSTERS SEEK REST IN SAME HOLLYWOOD HOTEL

Well Dressed, Courteous Chicagoans Spending Life of Luxury

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
(Copyright, 1936, by the Cons. Press.)
Hollywood, Calif. —(P)—A dozen members of the big rival Chicago racketeer mobs, those of Al Capone and Bugs Moran, are guests at one of Hollywood's most expensive, central and popular hotels. The gangsters came to the cinema capital to cool off, at the parlance goes. Their presence is known to perhaps three or four persons outside of gangland, it may or may not be known to the Los Angeles police.

About two months ago several members of the Bugs Moran mob, who will be remembered as participants in the famous St. Valentine's day garage massacre in Chicago, arrived here seeking rest and recreation. What was their surprise to discover at the same hotel half a dozen lieutenants of Al Capone, also seeking rest and recreation. Whether recent crimes in and around Hollywood and Los Angeles—numerous hold-ups and the robbery of a crack passenger train—are attributable to this program of rest and recreation is problematical.

NOT APPREHENDED
An armed truce and a schedule of riveted waiting has existed so far between the two gangster coteries. The very few people so far in the know, however, have expected any day to observe a car crowded

TODAY IS FRIDAY THE THIRTEENTH, SO WATCH YOUR STEP

The drama, "Friday the Thirteenth," with cross-eyed people, black cats, spiders, ladders, left-shoulder views of the moon, spilled salt, three lights off one match, tables of 13, and broken mirrors as the principal characters, was enacted today. Members of the cast, in retirement for several months, perked up their costumes, assumed diabolic facial expressions, and strutted out on the stage early this morning to cast their spell over the world. If you overslept, if the potatoes burned, if you forgot a note at the bank, if you bruised your shins or spilled ink on your best dress, there's always the consolation of blaming Friday the Thirteenth and all its hell-born implications. A plague that would destroy all cross-eyed people, a flood that would drown all black cats, and a conflagration that would burn all ladders would be welcome catastrophes today, but with small possibility of any of these occurring, Appletonians must bolster themselves for the ordeal.

against a curb and riddled with machine gun bullets or to see the popular hotel in question just blown to pieces.

In appearance the gangsters are well dressed, courteous and alert—perhaps a trifle more alert than the general run of tourists and sight-seers. They are likeable at first glance, and even at second. And in this period of business depression they seem well supplied with money.

HEALTH EDUCATION PROGRAM OUTLINED AT NURSE CONCLAVE

Doctors, Educators Address Nurses on Health in Public Schools

Milwaukee —(P)—A well rounded program of school health was urged today by Charles H. Keene, M. D., of the University of Buffalo, speaker at the biennial convention of nurses here.

"If we would keep constantly before us the ideal that the real function of the school is training for full citizenship," he said, "many of the perils of our health program would be eliminated."

"The aims of such a program should be three, protection from the acute and chronic infectious diseases, from the evils of poorly planned, poorly constructed, and poorly administered school buildings, and from the menace of the poorly trained teacher; correction of the defects which have arisen because of poor surroundings in the school, home, and community life, or because of lack of information on the part of parents and teachers, and as the sequelae of acute infections; prevention in the nature of marked improvement in habits of living, a vigorous upbuilding of physique through proper physical activities properly taught, and through the proper planning, construction, and sanitation of the school plant."

For the purposes of administration Dr. Keene divided his suggested program of school health into seven major parts, the sanitation of the school plant; physical education of a broad and extensive nature rather than narrow and intensive; the hygienic arrangement of the school program, which concerns itself with the number of hours per day that pupils of varying ages should go to school, and similar questions; the health of the teacher; health and training and instruction.

Dr. W. H. Burton, professor of education, University of Chicago, urged nurse educators to adopt and practice the modern concepts of supervision. Speaking at the Friday morning session of the National League of Nursing Education, Dr. Burton said, "Modern supervision is not imposed from above. It is not dogmatic or authoritarian, but is derived from the actual needs of the situation under supervision."

In planning supervision Dr. Burton stated that careful analysis of the whole situation should be made and certain definite pressing problems selected for attention. The hospital supervisory staff then will plan carefully the actual technique to be used in solving these problems, he said. "But while supervision must be as objective and scientific as possible, planned definitely and carried out vigorously, it must also be characterized by a kindly and sympathetic

KUYPERS AGAIN HEADS WISCONSIN FORESTERS

Antigo —(P)—Wisconsin Catholic Foresters, at their annual convention here Thursday had reelected all state officers. They are: John A. Kuypers, De Pere, chief state ranger; George H. Crowns, Kewaunee, state vice chief ranger; Leo P. Fox, Chilton, state secretary; W. A. Ryan, Milwaukee, state treasurer; W. A. Grotz, Berlin; John J. Brennan, Milwaukee and Joseph J. Wilke, Racine, trustees. Twenty-six delegates were elected to the international convention to be held at Minneapolis in August. Sheboygan was awarded the next convention in competition with LaCrosse and Beaver Dam.

to attitude which takes into account the human factors, is sympathetic with frailty, and in every way encourages and develops those under supervision, rather than represses and inhibits them."

The biennial convention was concluded today with business sessions of the three organizations.

STUBBORN SORE Itches and Burns Healed At Last By Resinol

"I was a sufferer for weeks from a severe sore on my body which itched and burned intensely. My nights were really impossible. I tried every local remedy I knew after a few prescribed treatments, electricity, etc., but the condition continued to grow worse, and I was about to go to the hospital. Quite by chance I learned of and tried Resinol Ointment. The relief was immediate, and after a few applications the place healed perfectly." (Signed)—

HOUSE CONVICTS TEMPORARILY IN U. S. ARMY CAMPS

Procedure Is Necessary as Congress Delays Building
Prisons

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—While congress takes its time about authorizing a couple of new federal prisons the Hoover administration is taking no chances on a disaster similar to the holocaust at the Ohio State prison in Columbus. The existing federal prisons are crowded to about twice their capacity, by official admission. Recent policy has been to get the boys out of the cells and behind barbed wire or in some other safe place. Army camps are being used to handle as many as possible and the Department of Justice is trying to extend its policy of arrangements with local jails for the incarceration of short-term federal convicts.

PRISONS NOW HOLD 13,000
Present population of the three federal prisons at Leavenworth, Atlanta and McNeil Island is about 13,000. Approximately an equal number of federal prisoners are awaiting trial or serving short sentences in more than a thousand different county or local institutions throughout the country.

The first batch of men to be sent from penitentiaries to army camps numbers about 100. More will follow as facilities for handling the prisoners are extended and further arrangements are made between the Justice and War departments.

Early reports are that everyone is happy about the experiment. Sanford Bates, superintendent of federal prisons, who is credited with the idea, is relieved at the prospect of temporarily relieving congestion. The War department doesn't mind getting free labor for improvements on its property. And the prisoners themselves are said to be happier working outdoors than cooped up in narrow, crowded cells as they were.

Prisoners from Atlanta have been sent to Fort Bliss, N. C. and Camp Meade, Md. Leavenworth inmates are being sent to Fort Riley, Kan. Another prison camp will be established at Camp Lee, Va., with facilities for about 600 men. Some 200 there have been sent to a camp at Alderson, W. Va., where they can work on improvements for the federal women's reformatory. Further extension of the camp system is expected. Whether such camps will be operated during the winter will depend on what winter conditions are in the vicinity.

The policy of Superintendent Bates is to send picked men into the camps. They must be strong, adapted for outdoor work and reasonably trustworthy. They will be well guarded, of course, but the idea is to make them regard camp work as a privilege and to establish compulsory return to the cells as a penalty in case they don't behave themselves.

In return for the free labor the army will provide living quarters, medical treatment and hospitalization. The prisoners will be entirely separated from the military units. Although they may occupy barracks, alongside those used by troops, these barracks will be surrounded by barbed wire and strict prison discipline and supervision will be maintained.

Federal prison officials are now studying the new law authorizing them to contract with local authorities where suitable accommodations for federal prisoners are available. Existing government property will be adapted for jail purposes whenever that is feasible, but the government will continue to use local institutions when reasonable rates can be obtained.

MAY BUILD TWO MORE
Constantly increasing congestion of federal prisoners is noted along the Canadian and Mexican borders and in some places in those areas, temporary federal workhouses or jails may have to be erected. Congress now has before it a bill to appropriate money for a new prison in southwest New York or just across the line from Pennsylvania and another somewhere in the southwest. Roughly speaking, that would put a prison in each corner of the country and one—Leavenworth—in the center.

BLAME JEALOUSY FOR SLAYING AND SUICIDE

Superior—(P)—Jealousy Thursday was given by police as the motive for the apparent slaying of Miss Astrid Johnson, 21-year-old Superior school teacher, and the suicide of her lover, Thor Hanson, 27.

Their bodies were found yesterday side by side in a farm wife's automobile. They had been missing since Monday night when they left for a car ride. The automobile was located by a farm woman near the Little falls of Black river, 10 miles south of here.

The girl was killed by a bullet wound in the temple. Hanson was shot twice through the head. He still gripped the revolver authorities said was used. Douglas co. authorities said there would be no inquest.

TRIES TO TEACH WIFE TO DRIVE—PAYS FINE

Kenosha—(P)—It cost Nicholas Probst, 26, Chicago, $6.50, endless arguments, and 50-miles worth of gasoline to try to teach his wife how to drive their car on the main highway.

All the way from Chicago to Kenosha, he said, he tried to be the perfect backseat driver and tell her when to push the brake and turn the steering wheel and what not. By the time they got to Kenosha, he said his wife knew no more about driving than when she started. He made some such remark and she replied as one usually replied to back seat drivers. That, he said, started an argument. Police arrested him on disorderly conduct charge and he was fined $6.50.

Max Schmeling Wins From Sharkey On Foul In Fourth

BOSTON GOB HAD BIG ADVANTAGE UNTIL FATAL BLOW
Outcome of Fight Leaves Heavyweight Situation Badly Muddled

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK.—The fight which had hoped to wake up today to celebrate the crowning of a new and undisputed world's heavyweight champion discovered, instead, that it had just another controversy.

Max Schmeling won on a foul from Jack Sharkey within the last six seconds of the fourth round of what was to have been the decisive battle for the heavyweight title last night at the Yankee stadium, but they left the situation as chaotic as when the wild scenes accompanying the abrupt finish of the match.

Severely battered though he had been, the black thatched 24-year-old German youth, who looks, bobs and weaves like the one and only Jack Dempsey, emerged with whatever honors and title claims go with the victory. He may, for the time being, be put at the top of the heavyweight class.

Schmeling's cause may be espoused by the National Boxing association and he is a candidate at least for the inscription of his name upon the Muldoon-Tunney trophy, emblematic of championship recognition so far as its donors are concerned.

But today, cold analysis of the unsatisfactory and disappointing climax to a two-year search for a fit monarch of heavyweight ranks appeared to offer no sound basis for proclaiming the young German possessor of honors universal in scope, where neither of the principals in the main test, before-hand, held any clear or undisputed claim to championship position.

MAX BADLY BATTERED
Max, experts may hold, should not be penalized and deprived of recognition for events beyond his control, but the fact remained that Schmeling was curiously and apparently fronted from the ring last night, the winner, but a badly battered one.

Schmeling was not hurt by a punch that was unquestionably low after having been decisively outboxed and outpunched by Sharkey, who with one erratic blow of his fist swept away the big honors that seemed almost certain to be his.

In the third round, Sharkey hit Schmeling groggy and a quick victory apparently in his grasp. A round later, the tables were reversed with such startling rapidity that scenes of the wildest disorder and confusion developed.

The final blow, intended as a left hook for the stomach, was delivered as the fighters were close together along the ropes, with the tap of the song ending the fourth round only a few seconds away. The referee, Jimmy Crowley, on the opposite side of the ring, with Sharkey's back between him and Schmeling, failed to see the punch. Withholding his decision, as the German sank writhing in agony to the floor, Crowley hesitated and was almost instantly surrounded and harassed by the managers, seconds and handlers of the two fighters as he sought advice from officials on either side of the ring. With the clamor still at its height and the crowd in complete uproar, Crowley finally accepted the unqualified judgment of one of the judges, Harold Earnest, and pronounced Schmeling the victor on a foul.

BARNES SAW BLOW
Barnes was the only one of the three officials to have an unobstructed view of the final blow and he unhesitatingly called it grounds for disqualification of the American.

The finish was a shock to the 70,000 spectators who had contributed to an estimated "gate" of $740,000, the largest in three years, in the hope of seeing the long-existing heavyweight muddle cleared up by a clean-cut victory for either Sharkey or Schmeling. Fans and experts had established Sharkey the favorite and, after the third round, expected to see him produce one of his most impressive triumphs. Instead they saw the big and temperamental Bostonian "blow" his best chance for championship recognition, much as by his erratic work he had tossed away two previous chances to climb the heights.

It was in the same spot that Sharkey failed in his first test, a knock-out victim of Jack Dempsey in a bout in 1927 that provoked a spirited "foul or fair" debate afterward. A year later, the former sailor's mediocre showing against Tom Heeney and a defeat at the hands of Johnny Risko robbed him of a right to challenge Gene Tunney in the latter's farewell ring appearance. Last winter in Miami, Sharkey was awarded a questionable knock-out victory over the Englishman Phil Scott, whose claims of foul were disallowed.

SHARKEY BIGGER
Savagely, in the third round, the bigger, harder-hitting Sharkey attacked his crouching, weaving rival. Max was rocked by piston-powered blows to the head, doubled up by pile-driving lefts to the ribs and stomach.

Badly punished Schmeling kept his feet and fought back gamely. Smelling and ice helped revive him between rounds and he came out aggressively in the fourth, to force Sharkey back for the first minute of fighting. The American was wary of the German's right after it thudded to his temple but Sharkey seemed again in command when the foul occurred.

Schmeling, in the brief opportunity afforded him, exhibited little effective punching, except with a straight right snapped from his deceptive crouch. He landed twice in the second round with this blow, as well as on the fourth. The German was fast and hand well but was handicapped in the clinches by Sharkey's 177 to his opponent's 165 and seemed to have twice that advantage.

Hagen Returns Home To Seek New Golf Titles

CHICAGO.—Walter Hagen is sailing homeward from a tour of the Orient and Australia, determined to win the United States open championship. By coincidence Sir Walter will land at Seattle the same day Bobby Jones and other Americans start after the British open title, voluntarily vacated by the old duke when he undertook the far eastern journey.

For the first time in years the summer will find Hagen without a national championship of one sort or another. Although he has not held the United States open since 1919, Hagen has managed to win four British opens and as many P. G. A. titles and they all were marketable when he wanted to sell his skill on the world's fairways.

The Haig has become so accustomed to wearing a crown instead of a hat that perforce he must get himself another without any delay and the summer will find him in a ritzy outfit.

INDIANS SECOND IN A. L. RACE AFTER WIN OVER PHILADELPHIA

Yankees Beat Detroit 14 and 2 as Ruth Gets 20th Home Run

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA.—The Indians have been getting most of the publicity. Roger Peckinpaugh's Cleveland Indians have been attending strictly to business, taking all rivals as they come, until today they had pushed into second place in the American league standing, only a game behind the pace-setting Philadelphia Athletics.

Great pitching by Ferrell, Brown and Hudlin has been the outstanding feature of the Indians' upward surge since May 24. In the intervening three weeks, Peckinpaugh's men have won 14 games and lost only four.

The Indians' sixth consecutive victory yesterday and their second in a row from the Athletics enabled them to leap into second place while Washington was bowing to Chicago. As the race stands now, all three leaders have lost 13 games with the A's winning 23; Cleveland 31 and Washington 30.

Clint Brown pitched great ball to give the Indians a shutout triumph over the A's, 4-0, granting only four hits.

The Senators bowed to Chicago's White Sox, 10-6, in a freighting battle that saw Ted Lyons chalk up his ninth victory of the season after three previous failures to get past his eighth.

HIT GET 20th HOMER
The New York Yankees fell on Walter Hoyt and two successors for 22 hits, including Babe Ruth's twentieth homer of the season and trounced the Detroit Tigers, 14-2.

Walter Stewart won his eighth victory for the St. Louis Browns, beating Boston, 6-5.

In the National league, Brooklyn stretched its lead to four and one-half games by beating Cincinnati, 3-2, while their leading rivals, the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants, were beaten.

Jackie Flowers' ninth double with the bases loaded in the seventh gave the Robins their win, the hit scoring the tying and what proved to be the winning run.

Pittsburgh halted the New York Giants' nine-game winning streak, 10-7, bunting hits for five runs in the first and four in the seventh.

Claude Willoughby scored his first victory of the season as the Phillies beat the Cubs, 5-3, in a game halted by rain in the sixth. Chuck Klein got three singles for the Phils and ran his consecutive hitting streak to 29 games.

The St. Louis-Boston game was postponed.

"A FOUL BLOW BUT UNINTENTIONAL," IS TUNNEY'S OPINION

Won't Say Whether Max' Name Will Be Engraved on Trophy

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK.—(AP)—The night before the bout between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott in Miami last February Gene Tunney sat in a seashore bungalow and talked of courage in the ring.

He named three or four "game" fighters, including the late Harry Greb, Bartley Madden, who died a few days later and "Chuck" Wiggins.

"Chuck Wiggins," said Tunney with a smile, "was and is an awkward fellow but endowed with marvelous courage."

"I shall never forget a bout I had with him in Boston," he said. "I had been practicing a new punch and I tried it out early in the bout. The result was a low blow. The referee warned me sharply. Wiggins said nothing."

"Again I tried it. Again it was low and again the referee emphasized a warning. Wiggins remained silent."

"A third time I let the punch go but there was no improvement in my direction and the referee became quite peeved. He angrily turned toward me and I am positive if Wiggins had made a motion to sink to the floor or even a distinct grimace, I would have been disqualified."

"Chuck then spoke for the first time. 'Gee whiz, Mr. referee,' he said, 'that was low.' And mind you, gentlemen, that was the third of three."

Last night Tunney sat in a ring-side seat and saw Max Schmeling win on a foul from Jack Sharkey in a contest intended to nominate his successor on the throne he abdicated.

He was sought as an expert for an opinion. It was promptly forthcoming.

"IT WAS A FOUL"
"It was a foul," the former champion said without hesitation. "It was unintentional beyond question and unfortunate, but it was a foul."

Suddenly Gene recalled that his questioner was present at his Miami chat when he presented the case of Wiggins' supreme disregard of fouls.

"Do you recall what I said at Miami about the low punches with which I struck Chuck Wiggins?" he asked.

The convention was recalled without difficulty.

"That is the blow ending tonight's bout. It is a punch which comes under a right hand and must be timed perfectly or it will land low with damaging effect. It is one blow that will cause excruciating pain and incapacitate a boxer. If it is started too low it is very dangerous."

"Few boxers can use that punch. It is too difficult to control. 'I saw it start and was not greatly surprised to see Schmeling double up in agony. I would have been surprised if anything else had happened.'"

"The blow started entirely too low."

Tunney pleasantly but firmly declined to discuss the championship situation, regarded as chaotic after the bewildering outcome of the titular bout.

Asked point blank if Schmeling's name would be engraved on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy, emblematic of the world's heavyweight championship, the former champion smiled but would not commit himself.

"I would rather not venture an opinion as to that," he said. "Perhaps this is not the time for that. Anyway you know I am not the one to say. That decision is not one of my responsibilities."

FIELD WIDE OPEN FOR CHICAGO RACE

Ned O and Tannery Among Horses Favored to Win American Derby

Chicago.—(AP)—The $50,000 American derby to be decided at Washington park tomorrow afternoon threatens to develop into the mystery race of the turf season, with the winner likely to pop out in front a 100 to 1 shot.

With the withdrawal of Gallant Fox and Whicome, the race appears to be as wide open as the widest spaces. The field will include a crack list of three-year-olds, but today there was no such thing as an outstanding favorite. It is anticipated that perhaps fifteen will go to the post.

The east will be represented by Ned O, owned by G. W. Foreman of Baltimore, Md., two from the New York stable of Walter J. Salmon, Swinfield and Snowflake; Gifford Cochran's Xenofol, W. S. Kilmer's Dark Sea and Horn Pipe, owned by the Wheatley stables. Ned O was a contender in the Kentucky derby, finishing third.

The two real hopes of the west are Gallant Knight, owned by the Audley farm of Virginia, but which always raced in the west and E. P. Fritchard's Tannery, from Kentucky.

Oklahoma City.—Young Jack Dillon, Louisville, knocked out Red Fitzsimmons, Wichita, (4). Wilson Dunn, Tulsa, defeated Norman Brown, Chicago, foul (3).

Hitting Is Plain Luck Old Sam Rice Believes

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO.—(AP)—Heated discussions of the "good old days" and the lively baseball mean nothing in the young life of "Old Sam" Rice, who is galloping through his sixteenth major league campaign in the uniform of the Washington Senators.

Sam, leader of the current American league parade almost from the start, is convinced hitting is altogether a matter of luck.

"I can't help but get a smile when the boys come back to the bench shouting praises for the so-called 'lively ball,' the eagle-eyed fly hawk base pirate and big bertha of the Senators explained. 'I learned long ago that hitting is just plain, unadorned luck.'"

"Take my case for instance. Here I am older than even and passed the normal retirement age. Still I keep on swinging and I am getting more hits than I ever did before. Of course, I do not mean that anybody can hit. I mean that if you are a good swinger and have a lot of luck, you're going to hit the ball where they 'ain't' and that's that."

"All pitchers are tough for me but when I get up in the morning feeling lucky, none of them is tough enough. Why, a batter can go four days and a hit 'em just as hard as any other day without getting a hit. Then he'll do the same thing the next day and have a harvest."

With that off his chest, Rice strolled up for his turn at bat against the White Sox, swung three times and missed.

MAX AND JACK MAY MEET AGAIN

Promoters Ready to Discuss Another Bout Later in Summer

New York.—(AP)—The upshot of all the fight furor may be to match Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling for a return bout in September to attempt a settlement of the heavyweight chaos. William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, told Sharkey's manager after the bout that he would be ready to discuss promotion of another contest here.

Meanwhile, Sharkey faced punishment under the stringent foul rules of the state athletic commission, despite an understanding that the contract for the fight last night specified these regulations were not to apply. The commission some time ago decided automatically to suspend a fighter for 90 days for his first local offense in fouling an opponent, also to pay him on a prorata round basis.

Sharkey and Schmeling, splitting 50 per cent of a net gate of $100,000 each would collect around $175,000 or nearly $12,000 per round each. Should the commission attempt to enforce its rules, Sharkey would get only $48,000 for the four rounds the contest lasted. Schmeling would not be penalized.

from the navy and am going back," Rice replied.

The manager bought his release and two years later, Sam was sold to the Senators with whom he has been starring ever since.

COATED PAPER LOSES TO FOURTH WARD BEARS

In a game featured by the brilliant pitching of Tommy Ryan and the hitting of the DeYoung brothers, the Fourth ward Bears hung up their seventeenth victory of the season by beating the Coated Paper company 5 and 1, Thursday evening. Ryan gave the losers two hits while the DeYongs got two hits each in three trips to the plate. One of the blows was a triple.

Besides allowing but two blows, Ryan struck out five men and issued no walks. But for errors he probably would have won by a shutout.

Friday night the Bears meet the Machine company team at 5 o'clock in the Fourth ward diamond and at 6:30 hook up with the Fairmont Ice Cream team. Mortell and Ryan will hurl for the Bears.

FORTY RACERS WOULD ENTER OUTBOARD MEET

Kenosha.—(AP)—At least 40 persons from Wisconsin cities have signified intention to enter the outboard motor boat races to be staged here as a part of the American legions water frolic on Lake Michigan, July 8, officials of the Kenosha outboard and motorboat club said today.

Among cities to be represented in the meet are: Madison, Fox Lake, West Bend, Milwaukee, Eagle Lake, Racine, Sheboygan, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and Manitowish.

SCHMELING FAILS TO REVEAL IN WIN AS RESULT OF FOUL

Jack at Loss for Words; Thinks Max a Terrible Fighter

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
New York (AP)—A puzzled German boy with a victory to celebrate but no desire to reveal looked out disconsolately today upon Friday the thirteenth and nursed a gripping pain in his lower abdomen.

There was no glee for Max Schmeling, 24-year-old Teuton, in the victory he won from Jack Sharkey on a foul in four rounds while some 70,000 of the faithful in the Yankee Stadium last night booed the farcical ending of another heavyweight fiasco.

Schmeling, somehow, impresses you as a clear-cut, fair-fighting youngster who doesn't want to win any match that way. There is gall for him, too, in the fact that he was losing to the American champion on points until a decidedly low left hook, flung with all of Sharkey's 197 pounds behind it, stretched him groaning on the canvass.

"I am disgusted to win like that," he said mournfully in his broken English as he lay on a rubbing table in a dressing room. "I fight my fight just as I want it. Then when my chance is coming I am fouled."

"For three rounds maybe I don't look so good but I am doing what I want. I am finding out about Jack Sharkey. I find he is not so good a fighter as they say he is. I find out he cannot hurt me with punches after I take his best. I know what I want to know. I am ready to do 'somezing' myself."

MAX IN PAIN

As Schmeling stretched out on the table, beads of perspiration dotting his forehead from the pain of the low blow, Dr. William Walker of the New York State Athletic Commission, made a thorough examination. After he had found a severe spasm in the left scrotum—"result of a severe blow in that region"—the lower portion of Schmeling's body was carefully packed in ice. He winced with pain as he was moved.

"I like to fight Sharkey again," he said. "I know I can whip him. He could not hurt me in the early rounds which I knew were his best. My plan for the fight was not to press him until the sixth round or after."

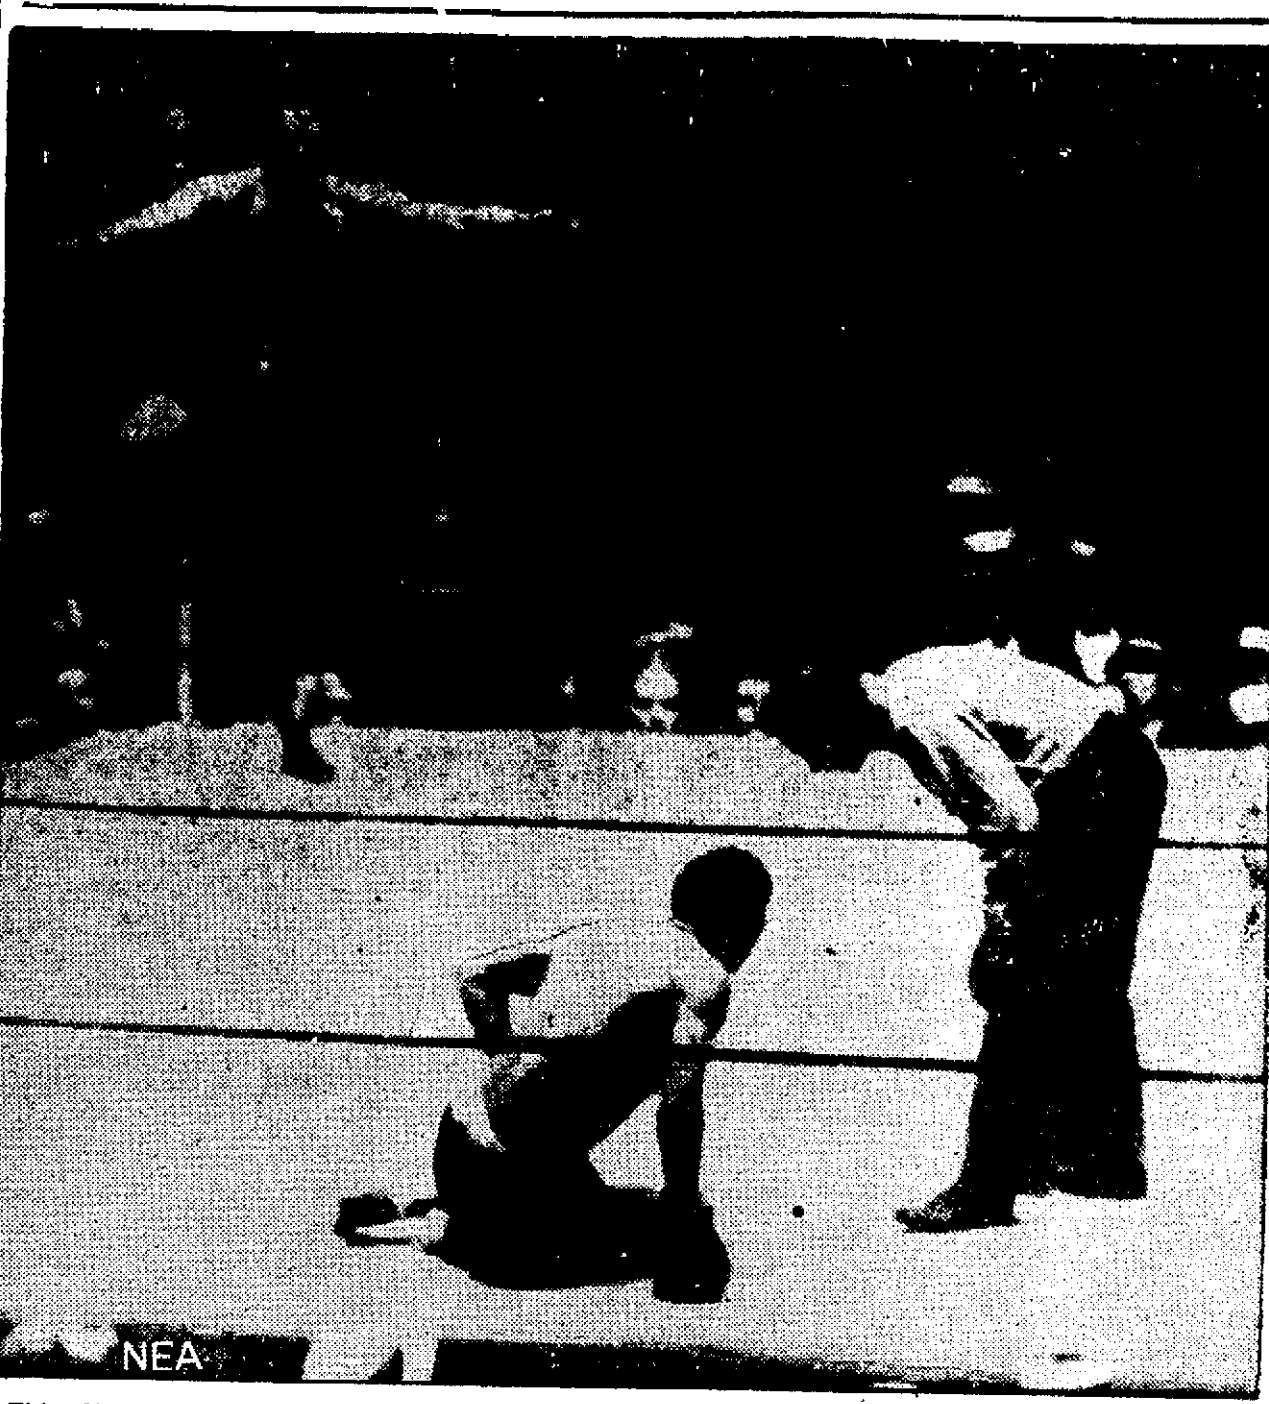

"When the third round was over and I look bad I didn't feel bad. I was not hurt. I come back to my corner and Joe Jacobs says 'take some smelling salts. Take some salts quick.'"

"No," I tell him. "I am all right. I go after him now and we see somezing."

"Sharkey he had—what you call it—shot his bolt. I can see the change in the fourth round. He looks different. He acts different. Then poof—the low punch. I am helpless."

"Once before Jack hit me low although I don't think either punch was intentional. I tell him then 'be careful, Jack' but he don't answer me. What was this someone told me about Sharkey talks to his opponent all the time? Anyway I give him his chance for revenge if he wants it."

SCHMELING WINS HEAVYWEIGHT CROWN

This Telephoto rushed to the Post-Crescent by NEA Service Inc., over telephone lines from New York to Chicago, pictures Max Schmeling on the canvas in the fourth round with referee Crowley counting over him. Jack Sharkey is shown in the background. The blow that sent Schmeling to the canvas when this picture was made also crowned him heavyweight champion of the world. 75,000 fight fans witnessed the contest at Yankee Stadium, New York.

Sharkey, balked for the third time with the heavyweight championship within reaching distance, was only a shadow of the blustering, talkative confident sailor who used to have plenty to say in victory or defeat. He seemed old in his dressing room. Heless, an athlete with the zip gone from his fast one, dogged by a jinx.

CARRIED AMERICAN FLAG

He had carried the American flag into the ring draped across his shoulders. One of the greatest fight crowds in New York's history had hooted the sight. He had set out to justify himself, fighting the best paced most intelligent fight he ever turned in here, yet he had ended up striking a low blow, fouling his opponent.

He plodded to his dressing room like a sleep walker, brushing aside condolences. He didn't want to talk or even think of the fight. He wanted to get home as fast as he could go to his wife and family.

Perhaps controlling his emotions, something he has never tried before, cost him something. He was the picture of helplessness in the ring waiting for the decision, a sort of unresisting victim of fate.

In the dressing room he acted like a small boy who had been whipped and didn't know why.

Softly he said: "I would rather have won that fight tonight than any other I ever fought."

Sharkey meant it. He wouldn't lie about his opinion of Schmeling. He thinks he is a terrible fighter. But there was something in his attitude that gained him more friends in that room in one minute than his belligerency has won for him in five years.

SECOND PLACE AT STATE IN AA GAMES

St. Paul Invades Columbus for 3 Game Series Beginning Today

Chicago (AP)—St. Paul today invaded Columbus to open a three game series with second place in the American association at stake.

The Senators opened the series one and one-half games behind the Saints, who, in turn, were four and one-half games in the rear of Louisville, with Toledo and Indianapolis close up in the next two positions.

Yesterday was pitchers' day at Louisville. Joe Do Berry, giving Kansas City five hits, gained a 2 to 1 decision over the Blues. The Colonels no more than made it, Pea Ridge Day, Kansas City's shouting southpaw, giving only four hits.

Indianapolis devoted one inning to obtain a 9 to 7 victory over Milwaukee in a night game. A home run by Hoffman, Dorman's triple, a double and five singles, accounted for the nine runs and the Indians were just able to withstand the Brewers' closing drive. Grimes and Gerken got home runs for Milwaukee.

Bill Burwell pitched all but part of the last inning for Indianapolis, while Burck and Stark divided the task for Milwaukee and permitted 13 hits.

St. Paul scored four runs off Curley Ogden in the first inning and wound up with a 4 to 3 decision over Toledo.

A ninth inning rally gave Minneapolis a 7 to 5 victory over Columbus in the rubber game of the series. Singles by High, Barrett and Ober-

Sports Question Box

Question—Do any American teenagers now give the promise of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight in New York, last night?

Answer—It does not seem so.

Question—Runners are on first, second and third, with one hand out. Batter hits safely to the outfield, scoring the runner on third. Runner who was on second tries to score and is caught at the plate. Catcher throws to first base, which is charged, the batter failed to touch. Does the run count?

Answer—Rule 50 says the run may not count if the batter fails to touch first base, third hand out. It is contended by some that he was the second hand out because he was out when he failed to touch first. He would not have been called out if the fielding side had not made the play to first base. The decision is that he was the third hand out and the run does not count.

Question—How old is Mike McGuire? Is he still fighting? Did he make much money as champion?

Answer—Mike says he is forty-two. Yes, Yes.

holzer, along with an error of omission by McCann, gave the Millers three runs in the final inning. Bernie Neils, who was traded to Minneapolis for Earl Smith yesterday, drove in the first three Miller runs.

DEMPSEY OFFERS MAX HIS CONGRATULATIONS

Los Angeles (AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, expressed his opinion of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight in New York, last night, said:

"It is unfortunate for Schmeling, the victor, and Sharkey the loser, that it ended in a foul."

The former champion said the outcome would make no difference in his present plans which he said, are to go into training after recuperating from a recent operation.

"After going into training, I will decide whether I will fight again," Dempsey said.

"My congratulations to Schmeling."

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

New York—Max Schmeling, German, defeated Jack Sharkey, Boston, 4 to 1, at Yankee Stadium, New York, last night. Schmeling, New York, (Don Henry) Lamm, Washington, D. C., outpointed Matteo Osa, Spain, (St. Ralph) Cloutier, New York, stopped Peter Brand, Idaho, (St. Stanley) Torda, Jersey City, outpointed Paul Banchi, Argentine, 6 to 1.

Springfield, Ill.—Red Taylor, Toronto, defeated Johnny (Doc) Weir, Kansas, St. Louis, (C. Kaiser) injured hand.

HITTER ELECTED CAPTAIN

Gibson Hundt, hard-hitting shortstop, who occasionally did work as a relief pitcher during the past season, has been named captain of the Iowa State College nine for 1936.

What the Stars Did Yesterday

Jake Flowers, Robins—His double with bases loaded in seventh drove in two runs and enabled Robins to beat Reds, 3-2.

Clint Brown, Indians—Held Athletics to four hits and blanked them, 4-0.

Earle Combs and Lyn Lary, Yankees—Divided eight hits among them drove in four runs and scored six as Yankees trounced Tigers, 14 to 2.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Got three singles as Phils beat Cubs and ran consecutive hitting streak to 29 games.

Walter Stewart, Browns—Won eleventh victory of season, stopping Red Sox with nine scattered hits.

GANDHI NOT CAUSE, BUT SPOKESMAN OF UNREST IN INDIA

Even Should He Die in Prison,
He Might Still Be Formidable Foe

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—Many Englishmen are gravely asking themselves these days, if Gandhi dies in prison, whether he will not do for India what John Brown did for the United States and the case of slavery. Even in a jail, somewhere near Poona, the British masters only have his body locked up. His spirit goes marching on. Gandhi is not the cause of the unrest in India. He is simply the megaphone through which the woes of the bulk of the $18,000,000 natives of India are proclaimed to themselves and the world. And India contains one-seventeenth of all the world's population.

Britain's problem in India is a terrific one. Neither the United States nor any other world power ever has had anything like it to tackle. The bulk of the humble Indians give Britain the credit for some things it has done: a system of courts which give the poorest a bribed justice; a plan of canals which renders fertile lands that were formerly desert; a system of railways which permits India to interchange products; a vigilant administration which seeks to palliate famine by bringing food to the needy.

BLAME BRITISH "RAJ"

But all this is a mere scratch on the surface of this vast sub-continent. The people of India—like people everywhere—blame all their ills on the British "Raj." The chances are that all or most of the evils which the people suffer have come down the ages and are well-nigh insoluble. India is predominantly an agricultural land and the bulk of the people work on the land. India produces 64 per cent of the world's rice, 12 per cent of its wheat, against 13 per cent from Canada, 27 from the United States; practically all of its jute; 26 per cent of its cotton, 45 per cent of its flax and 40 per cent of its tea.

And yet two-thirds of the people are underfed and it has been estimated that 40 millions do not know what it is to get one square meal per day. The average income of the bulk of the Indian people has been estimated at $25 per annum as against $150 in Germany, $160 in France, $250 in Great Britain and $360 in the United States.

But that only tells part of the story. The bulk of those who work on the land are either tenant-farmers or laborers. And all of them are in the hands of the usurers, who often fatten on them and get control of the bulk of their crops, so that often India is exporting agricultural products when vast districts are suffering from famine. The tenant farmer is burdened with rent to his landlord—an absentee in the cities—and with the land taxes levied by the British government in India. Often payment of these sums is demanded before his crops are in. For ready cash he has to turn to the native village usurer, who pledges the crops that are still growing. And always at an outrageous rate of interest.

In recent years there has been a considerable development of manufacturing industry in the bigger Indian cities. The lot of the worker in the city is no better than that of those who till the soil. There is a vicious system whereby the sub-foremen in the factories have control of the enrollment of laborers. In the competition for places, they would be workmen know they have to bribe the sub-foremen. And after they get their jobs, they have to continue to give up part of their pitiful wages, so they will not be fired. Many of these workmen come from the farms. They hope to send part of their wages back home to help the wife and children. They become hopelessly involved and, finally, the wife and children move to town and are also working in the factory. The bulk of their wages go for food and a miserable place in which to sleep. There is little left for clothing.

WANTS INDIA FOR INDIANS

Gandhi, who knows all these things, blames it all on western civilization. He says that before the predatory white men came into India it sufficed for itself. It grew its own food. It manufactured for its needs. Industry was carried on in the home and small village shops. Then the white introduced the machine age. He taxed the native goods out of existence and flooded the country with machine-made goods. Before the poor farmer or worker eked out his resources by what he and his family made in their own homes in their hours of enforced idleness during the dry seasons. Now they no longer have this resource.

Which is why Gandhi has put to the fore two words which have become famous in India—Swaraj and Swadeshi.

By Swaraj Gandhi means total home rule and independence for India—India for the Indians.

By Swadeshi he means economic independence. He wants the natives to boycott European goods and to go back to the spinning wheel and the village industry. He wants his people to cut all ties with the so-called Christian civilization. He says the World War proved that the white man's civilization was not Christian but Satanic.

The millions have heard him. They revere him as a latter-day saint. Alive, even in prison, he is a great force. Dead in prison near Poona, he would be an ever greater force. In this little man of 61, who was a brilliant graduate of English universities and law schools, who could have made a fortune, but who clothed himself with a simple loin cloth and ate only fruit and vegetables and drank only water, who is a devout Hindu, but who the New Testament taught him the value of passive resistance to the oppressor, Britain has the most formidable opponent it has ever encountered.

NAVAL TREATY HAS
REAL BACKING IN FIGHT IN SENATE

Its Friends Are Influential
Despite All Outcries
Against It

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Because the civilian delegates to the London naval conference and various admirals and other members of the big navy group violently disagree over the treaty that came out of the conference doesn't necessarily mean that either side is all wet or given to double-dealing.

The big navy faction, which includes most admirals, some senators, the William B. Shearers, the Navy League and some of the professional patriots, stands at one extreme as opposed to the more violent pacifists who would have disarmament at any price.

LITTLE CHANCE OF DEFEAT.
The delegation—a fairly strong group, including such reasonably able citizens as Dwight Morrow,
Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Adams and Senators Robinson and Reed—occupies what might be considered a middle-ground position, convinced that it obtained the best possible from the standpoint of American interests both with regard to national defense and international naval limitation.

The position of the treaty, consequently, still remains so strong that there is as yet no serious expectation that it will fail to get the necessary two-thirds majority in the Senate. The strategy of the big navy group appears to be to load it up with reservations.

One reservation which probably will be proposed would give the United States, in case Great Britain invoked the escalator clause, the right to build more eight-inch-gun cruisers regardless of what type of craft Britain put her added tonnage into. This clause now provides that in case France increases her fleet Britain, America and Japan may do likewise—but no more than the only build in the same type of ship that Great Britain builds.

The violent disagreement between Rear Admiral William V. Pratt and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, over the relative merits of eight-inch-gun cruisers and six-inch-gun cruisers is reminiscent of the contentious offer of a plea of insanity.

But, generally speaking, most naval officers are in favor of a big navy.
Their business and no business man ever wants his business curtailed.
Naval officers spend plenty of the time thinking what will happen if we ever go to war with Great Britain or Japan. That's their business.
Naturally, they would much prefer to have our navy in a superior position in case of war. It's more sensible to win if you're better armed than the other fellow.

Unfortunately for the big navy group, their extreme tactics have been in some dispute ever since the country learned what Mr. William Baldwin Shearer, in the employ of shipbuilding companies, did at the Geneva limitation conference in 1927. It was testified that Mr. Shearer and most of our naval superintendents agreed at the time on the desirability of making that conference abortive. It was, but at London
Mr. Shearer was not in sight and there was no dominating group of admirals to spoil the show. Now, apparently, some of them hope to spoil it in Washington.

At London everybody seems to have given up something. As a result there are squawks from the British big navy boys in parliament and the Japanese big navy boys at Tokyo, as well as our own super-patriots in Washington. For instance, we gave England superiority in small cruisers and she gave us superiority in big cruisers. We gave Japan better ratios on auxiliary craft than she had on capital ships, but not enough to let anyone imagine that she could wage an offensive war against our western coast.

NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE.

Senator Reed showed interestingly in his examination of Admiral Jones that the navy's general board had agreed last September to a division of the cruiser fleet between the six-inch and eight-inch cruisers. It agreed as to the adequacy of 21 eight-inch gun cruisers aggregating 210,000 tons and 15 six-inch gun cruisers totaling 165,000 tons. The treaty gives us 18 of the eight-inch cruisers at 130,000 tons and 20 six-inchers at 143,500. That would put the big navy squawk against six-inch cruisers down to a simple disagreement over the relative desirability of three big cruisers and five little cruisers. Members of our delegation contend that the difference if any, was a small amount to compromise, considering the aim. And the argument over the relative merits of big and little cruisers continues.

None of those engaged in the treaty row is trying to double-cross the United States. Some senators will be beating their breasts for political effect, but on the whole it's a row between patriots with different points of view.

HANGING HOUSES IN NEAR FUTURE

London — The scientific home of the near future, as designed by Buckminster Fuller, will be a hanging affair, turned out in production along the lines of automobiles, and will be a product of scientific endeavor rather than that of a carpenter, mason and plumber.

Fuller's Dymaxion house models are hung from a pole run through the center of the house. They have transparent walls of cellophane, floors of inflated rubberoid unit, while heat, light and refrigeration are supplied by a Diesel engine.

Fuller claims that by hanging houses in the air more sunlight and ventilation can be had and that loss from floods and fires will be eliminated.

About $1,000,000 is to be spent in 1934 by the Smithsonian government Power commission on the development of such house forms.

Murder at High Tide

Chapter 29
STEEL SHAVINGS

Y experiences of the past three days had taught me the folly of jumping at conclusions.

"Fligue," I proceeded cautiously, "what was in the pocket of Mrs. Parados' gown—her robin's-egg blue gown?"

"You have not guessed?"

"I wouldn't have asked you if I had," I retorted. "Sometimes I wonder if your front of superior wisdom conceals any more than the rest of us know."

Fligue chuckled, seemingly undisturbed at my silly outburst. "Was not Friday madame's birthday and the anniversary of her marriage to monsieur?" he inquired.

It was intended to enlighten me, it didn't. On Friday evening, I recalled, Fligue had offered Mrs. Parados his congratulations on the double significance of the day. She had received them with a good deal of perturbation, but I wasn't prepared to construe her reaction to them as evidence of guilt.

Nor was I ready to believe that it was a pistol which Mrs. Parados held in the pocket of her gown as she went into the little hall that gave separate access to the room, bathroom and roof.

Fligue said no more, and we passed out of the patio in silence. My mind continued to struggle with this new aspect of the case Manning had so innocently illuminated.

I did not notice that we were approaching the garage until we were almost there. Fligue glanced toward the south end in which Annersley was imprisoned, but the north end, which served as power house and workshop, proved to be his destination.

He prowled around the room, paying little attention to the power plant, but enormously interested in the lathe—a screw cutting lathe, I thought. I trailed him silently.

Suddenly a long steel rod, which leaned against the wall behind the lathe, attracted his attention and he pounced upon it.

"Cre nom de nom!" he whispered. "What is it?" I demanded, forgetting my resolution to keep quiet.

"Mon dieu, you do not know?"

"Will you observe that, M. l'Antiquaire?" he inquired triumphantly.

In the palm of his grimy hand lay a fragment of spiraled steel shaving, similar to the one he had found in Grainger's pocket, but an inch or so longer. It told me nothing except that Grainger had been machining some object on his lathe, and I admitted as much. Fligue chuckled and twirled his mustache.

"Grainger, you think?" he dropped the shavings into an envelope. "Well, we shall see. My friend, they are living tissue, those shavings and that steel rod, and you do not perceive it is so." He shook his pink head sorrowfully. "But you have not the inward eye."

"They really tell you something?" I asked.

"They tell me everything, monsieur. It was done by a clever one, that trick, and it is well that Anatole Fligue is here." He twirled his mustache again. "Tonight we shall open the heart of our big mystery. But there are many things to do yet and perhaps memselle is waiting for monsieur—" He paused and shrugged.

Clearly, he wanted me to go, so I left him, puzzling over what I had seen and heard.

I was still groping when I came upon Caroline in the pergola. She wanted to know what was the matter.

"I have just left Fligue," I explained, dropping beside her, "and I'm beginning to wonder if the Lord forgot to endow me with brains. Fligue sees meaning in everything. He insists that he has read the riddle, but he won't tell me the answer. I feel like a fool."

Caroline put her fingers on my lips.

"You are too near to it, Allan," she said gently. "So am I." Her eyes filled with tears. "Can't we get away for a little while—up the hill—where the sun shines—" Her voice broke and I took her hands. "Something has happened again, dear?"

She nodded, shivering. "That dress of Celia's—the little googette, you know?"

"Yes?"

"I gave it back to her. She ripped it to shreds—stamped on it—kicked it—oh, Allan, she said dreadful things!"

"Try not to think about them," I pleaded, after a moment. "Celia is crazy with grief. She couldn't be otherwise. It'll come right soon. Tonight, maybe. Fligue said so." I slipped my arm around Caroline. "Perhaps we can get Lum We to put us up a lunch."

Lum We, it turned out, was delighted to prepare refreshments and we departed with half a chicken, two thirds of a lemon pie, and a bottle of milk in a leather satchel.

There are moments in the lives of all of us which are precious only because they are secret, and it is nobody's business what Caroline and I did with ourselves during the rest of the morning and the early afternoon.

Toward 4 o'clock we came to the most northerly point of the ridge. Below us, on the east side, was the abandoned fishing village which had been occupied by Portuguese settlers until Parados had bought the island and turned them out of their homes. We had been hoping that we would find it.

Three wharves rotted on their piles in the mauve mirror of the cove. The bleached ribs of a variety of small craft embedded in the white sand had the mournful air of a prehistoric graveyard.

A huddle of sheds occupied the center of the settlement and from either side of it extended a score or so of frame and adobe houses, most of them, fallen in like mushrooms withered in a hot sun. Chimneys were gone; doors stood agape, their approaches smothered by sand or choked by ice-plant. A tiny church had lost its steeple.

The disintegration of the place depressed and angered me. This was the most wicked thing Dan Parados had ever done. I thought. A trail that led down the steep slope looked passable, but neither of us was inclined to try it.

"It would spoil everything," Caroline said, shuddering. "That man's hatred is everywhere. If it hadn't been for Grainger—"

She paused and I nodded. Annersley—if it were he—had done society a definite service. If it had not been for Grainger, I should have been inclined to congratulate him. But Grainger made all the difference. I was sorry for Celia. There is nothing like sheer error for turning a man into something else.

Caroline must have read my thought.

"You are sure it was Annersley?" she asked thoughtfully.

"Aren't you?" I countered.

"Yes, I suppose so." Her tone was still doubtful. "I had a silly sort of an idea—" She paused, frowning.

"What is it?" I pressed.

"I thought she was going to tell me, but she shook her head instead. 'No, it's just a crazy notion that occurred to me. It wouldn't be fair to tell you. Too much has been said about—about people who couldn't have done it. It must have been Annersley. Miss Jabrics caught him with the pistol in his hand.'"

"You might as well tell me," I urged. "Are you thinking about Mrs. Parados? That Fligue broke her alibi, I mean?"

But she wouldn't say any more and I did not press her. Caroline had a way of meaning what she said.

Suddenly she caught my arm.

"I thought I saw some one down there," she exclaimed. "On that center wharf."

"I didn't notice any one," I replied. "I was looking that way, too. You must have been mistaken."

"Isn't that like a man?" she cried indignantly. "Let's watch for a minute or two."

We watched for perhaps five minutes, but nothing living moved upon the wharf.

"Well!" I said.

"No," Caroline declared emphatically. "I don't think I was mistaken."

In a little while we started back. (Copyright, 1929, William Morrow and Company)

Did Caroline really see some one? Tomorrow Fligue traces another tomorrow late this night.

WATER CONSUMPTION 82,000,000 GALLONS

Demand Averages 7,000,000 a Month, Utility Head Reports

Kaukauna—Water consumption in the city totals about 82,000,000 gallons a year, according to Herbert Wickworth, superintendent of the city electric and water departments. This averages about 7,000,000 gallons a month. During the summer much more water is used, of course.

The city water is obtained from two wells located on the island near the city reservoirs. A pressure of 40 pounds is maintained on the water in the homes and a pressure of 65 pounds on the water in the mains. Pressure is obtained from a large standpipes on Taylor-st.

Two reservoirs are being used to hold the city water for drinking. The city last year when the old one was found in need of repair. The old one was repaired and both are being utilized now.

An unusual hardness is found to be one of the qualities of the water, giving it a pleasant taste for drinking. The water is tested for purity twice a year. It has always been found pure in the tests. The water is used in the swimming pool. It is tested each month for purity, so that it will not be harmful to any swimmer that accidentally swallows some.

HOUSEWIVES TOLD HOW TO FIGHT ANTS

Queen as Well as Workers Must Be Destroyed, Expert Discloses

BY W. F. WINSEY
Oconto—One of the most troublesome pests in the kitchen in summer is the ant, said County Agent J. I. Etheridge, who recited the life history of the nuisance, described their habits and colony organizations, listed the foods and proposed methods of control.

The county agent describes the ant as the most aggravating, annoying creature in existence, but admits that ants are very industrious, well organized socially and possess a remarkable amount of intelligence. The queen of the ant colony is the cause of all the trouble that ants stir up for the housewife. She has wings, mates, digs a hole in the ground, chews her wings off, and starts laying eggs. The eggs develop into larva pupa and finally into the grown ant. A division of labor is one of the characteristics of the ant colony. The workers forage for food and feed the queen and the young.

The small, red ant is very troublesome. It is fond of sugar, syrup, fruit juices, jelly, cakes, and fruit pies. Other kinds of ants prefer meat products of a juicy nature.

Keeping in mind the above facts, the housewife will see that the control of ants is best effected by destroying the queen as well as the workers doing the direct damage. To kill the queen, the workers should be given poisoned bait that will not kill them before they have delivered it to the queen and larva.

As such baits, Etheridge proposes one part lard, emetic, 20 parts sugar, and 100 parts water. The lard emetic can also be rubbed on bacon, or be mixed one part to 20 of lard. (2) Three grams sodium arsenite mixed with one tablespoon of water and added to two pounds of sugar. This mixture is dissolved in one and one-half cups of hot water and soaked in a sponge. One pound of sugar, one quart of water to dissolve sugar, 125 grams arsenite of soda and hot until dissolved with the above. Add one tablespoon of honey and soak in sponges placed in shallow dishes. One fourth teaspoon so-

POLICEMAN COMES TO AUSTRIA'S AID AND DOES GOOD JOB

Johann Schober, Strong Man, Is Called to Helm of Nation

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—A former policeman of Vienna named Johann Schober, having hobnobbed with Mussolini in Rome, with the President of France and the Premier of Paris, recently came to London, tucked his feet under Ramsay MacDonald's luncheon table and then hustled off to Buckingham Palace for a long conference with King George.

Which is some achievement even for a super-cop. But then, Dr. Schober has been alternating between jobs of police chief and chancellor of the little republic of Austria, and he now is taking his third turn at the government helm.

WAR-SHOCKED CONDITION

After huge slices of the Austro-Hungarian empire were given to Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—and after Hungary had been set up as a separate state—Austria found herself in the worst condition of all the war-shocked lands of Europe. She was saddled with war debt, and her creditors had a first mortgage on her treasury receipts. Surrounding states set up tariff walls that took away most of her old customers.

As if this were not bad enough, Austria was not even at peace with herself. Vienna, with 2,000,000 of the nation's 6,000,000 people, was strongly socialist and formed its own government, called the Schutzbund. The country people, many with Fascist tendencies, also formed an army, the Heimwehr. The conservatives ruled Austria as a whole, but the Socialists ruled Vienna—all but the police. The constabulary was maintained outside the grasp of city authorities.

That's where the super-cop came in. During the war, Dr. Schober had charge of the political police. When Emperor Karl abdicated, he asked Dr. Schober to take the job of police-president in charge of police. Schober did so, and thus preserved the city from extreme terrorism.

Eight years ago Austria seemed about to collapse. Factories were closing, no foreign loans could be obtained, and her people were on the verge of starvation. Schober was called to the chancellorship, and pled his country's cause so effectively that an international loan was sanctioned by the League of Nations. Furthermore, the heavy financial burdens placed on Austria by the peace treaties were temporarily suspended.

JOB AS A POLICEMAN
Having pulled his country out of the mire, Dr. Schober went back to his job as a policeman.

But last year more trouble cropped up—the threat of civil war. The reactionary Heimwehr and the socialist Schutzbund seemed in actual battle. Austria's credit ready to fight out their quarrels again was ruined, and rich people were taking their money out of the banks.

In September, with conditions at their worst, Dr. Schober again became chancellor. He found the Heimwehr very arrogant in their demands and threatened to march on Vienna. The socialists prepared to fight. Schober calmly announced that the Heimwehr would not be allowed to enter Vienna. He mustered all his police, stationed them around the public buildings, and placed machine guns at every strategic point. The rural fire-eaters realized he was not bluffing. They quit. Then Schober acted quickly on the advantage he had gained. He cleaned up the city's financial situation, got more power into the hands of the president, went to the Hague conference and soon persuaded France, England and Italy to agree virtually to suspend all reparations. Her treasury was once more her own, and she was free to go into the world's money markets for loans.

Helps Austria

Johann Schober, above, the former policeman who has come to the aid of Austria in several times of danger.

So it was as Austria's strong man that Dr. Schober has visited Berlin, Paris, Rome and London to thank various foreign statesmen for their help. Very shortly, with the kindly acquiescence of these nations, Austria expects to borrow $100,000,000. With this money Schober says he will develop Austrian roads, water power and the entire industrial situation.

French Aviator To Brave Atlantic's Dangers Again

New York (P)—Defeated once in his attempt to fly north Atlantic from east to west, Capt. Dieudonne Coste will attempt this spring to fulfill a promise made in America in 1928.

Reversing Lindbergh's route, the daring French aviator proposes to fly from Paris to New York in a trimotored Brequet plane, modeled after his famous ship of last year, the Question Mark.

Last July he started with Maurice Bellonte in the craft, powered with a single motor, to span the ocean, but faced with headwinds, landed back in France after a flight of more than 2,100 miles over water.

Undaunted by the failure and still tempted by the Atlantic, they refitted the plane and headed toward China and landed in Tientsin, Manchuria, with a new world's air-line distance record to their credit. They had flown 4,948.59 miles non-stop in 51 hours and 39 minutes. Later they piloted the plane to a new world's distance record over a closed circuit, flying 4,987 miles in 52 hours and 30 minutes.

The promise to fly the Atlantic was made by Coste, then a lieutenant, when here in 1928 with Joseph Lebriz in the midst of a round-the-world tour in which they carried the tri-color of France 35,000 miles.

"We do not want to go back to Paris by plane," the aviator said, "because Lindbergh has already done that; it would be useless repetition to follow him. After we get back to France, we shall plan the east to west flight of the north Atlantic."

Fully half of what is now on the market as "cut glass" is nothing but pressed glass which is finished and polished by hand. This is a cheaper method of manufacture and produces a poorer quality of glass. It can be readily identified by running the fingers over the inside of the piece in question. Pressed or molded glass always has slight ridges. There are other ways of telling the difference. Real cut glass has a brilliant finish, whereas the imitation lacks luster. The real ware is heavier than the imitation and gives a resonant ring when tapped, while the pressed product lacks a noticeable ring.

SUSPECT CONFESSES COBB BANK ROBBERY

Dodgeville—(P)—William Nesvacki, 35, confessed that he robbed the Cobb State bank last Saturday of $1,000 when questioned by police here following his arrest in Mazomanie Wednesday. He had $855 in his room when arrested.

Investigation of C. H. Knudson, Iowa co. district attorney, brought Nesvacki's arrest. The man had been working near Cobb and after the robbery he disappeared. He was found in Mazomanie, his former home.

The robbery occurred at noon Saturday during a short period when the cashier left the bank. A rear window was forced and the money taken. Mr. Knudson said preliminary

EXAMINATIONS MAY BE FUN IN FUTURE

Washington—(P)—Little Johnny and Sue of the next generation may find more fun than worry in their examinations in school.

Charles R. Mann, director of the American Council of Education Thursday announced receipt of a $500,000 grant from the general educational board for 10 years support of the council's research on objective tests.

These tests are designed to reveal how well boys and girls can use their knowledge; and are intended to supplant examinations of the type to show what the student knows.

"When such objective tests of any bearing for Nesvacki probably will be Tuesday. A mental examination may be ordered, he said.

achievement are available," Mr. Mann said, "schools will be able to promote students on a basis of proficiency rather than on the present basis of time credits."
